EDITOR'S NOTE

As I look over the 196 pages of material you hold in your hand, the lists of statistics, the records of championships, the pieces of history, the profiles of wrestlers, the results from pay-per-view cards, and all the rest. I have only one word to say.

Whewl

There is no question in my mind that this volume is the most massive undertaking ever made by this publishing company, at least in the 14 years I've been associated with Pro Wrestling Illustrated and its sister publications.

There is also no question in my mind that this is long overdue. For years, every sport has had record books and reference books available to the fans. Every sport, that is, except wrestling.

Now that situation is remedied.

Six months ago in the pages of PWI, we asked for your input and suggestions as to what we ought to put in this almanac. We took many of your suggestions, and hope you're as pleased with the finished product as we are. We've cross-referenced and double-checked every fact and bit of information on every page. The result is an invaluable reference tool for every fan of the sport.

But it's just the beginning.

Next year, the second edition will be published, and we will do everything we can to make improvements and update the information you hold in your hands. What would you like to see added to this almanac and fact book? What changes would you make? What sections would you expand—or eliminate? Let us know!

Also: Do you have information to add to any of the sections? Bits of history, perhaps, or dates of pro debuts and wrestler birthdays? Or did you spot an error, factual or typographical, that crept into these pages? Hopefully there aren't many (we labored long and hard to make this volume as accurate as can be), but there are probably a few: if so, write and let us know, so we may update our files for next year.

Send all comments, suggestions, additions, and corrections to: PWI ALMANAC, Box 1148, Ft. Washington, PA 19034

Meanwhile, enjoy this first-ever almanac and fact book ... and we'll see you in the pages of the monthly Pro Wrestling Illustrated.

WRESTLING REVUE BLOWOUT!

Wrestling historians, rejoice! Published between 1959 and 1964, Wrestling Revue is acknowledged as one of the finest series of wrestling magazines ever produced. These beautiful editions, all edited and published by Stanley Weston (founder of Pro Wrestling Illustrated, The Wrestler, and Inside Wrestling, among so many other titles) set a standard for all wrestling magazines that followed, and have not been offered for sale for more than a decade! But a recent transfer of warehouse inventory from New York to Pennsylvania uncovered a small supply of these classic publications! Obviously, supplies are extremely limited, so all magazines will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis only. Prices quoted are based on the rarity of the issue and the number of available copies. For speediest service, use VISA or MasterCard or make payment by money order or certified check. Please don't send cash! Don't miss out on this once-in-a-lifetime chance to own a memorable piece of wrestling history! Once they're gone, they'll never be offered for sale again—so order today!

THE 10 BIGGEST NEWS STORIES OF 1 9 9 5

1-THE MONDAY NIGHT TV WARS

On September 4, World Championship Wrestling started the Monday night TV wars by launching WCW Monday Nitro head-to-head with rival powerhouse WWF Monday Night Raw. WCW sent a strong message to the WWF by acquiring Lex Luger, one of the WWF's most popular stars, and having him appear on its debut episode. Luger, a former WCW heavyweight champion, challenged Hulk Hogan for a title match, which took place live the next week. Since Nitro's debut. the battle for ratings supremacy has been a stalemate, with Nitro and Raw trading victories week to week. But that's considered a victory by WCW, as Raw was consistently ranked in the top 15 cable television shows before Nitro's debut with an average Nielsen rating of 3.2. That number dropped to about 2.5 when Nitro began. With Nitro averaging about the same rating, that indicates that rather than the WWF and WCW splitting the Monday night audience, wrestling viewership actually increased with the arrival of Nitro. A combined 5.0 rating translates to a total of nearly 5 million viewing homes.

WCW MONDAY NITRO

2—LAWRENCE TAYLOR GAINS MASSIVE MAINSTREAM PUBLICITY FOR PROFESSIONAL WRESTLING

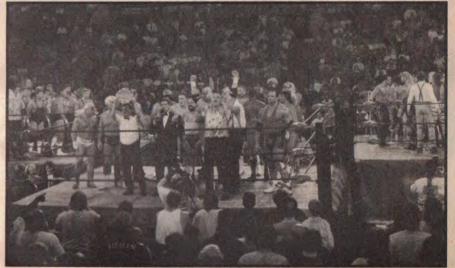

By agreeing to wrestle Bam Bam Bigelow at WrestleMania XI, former New York Giants superstar Lawrence Taylor set off a media frenzy surrounding his appearance on the most popular pay-per-view card of the year. Not since WrestleMania III had the mainstream press paid that much attention to wrestling, and the WWF hoped it would lead to WrestleMania XI being its most successful PPV to date. The TNT cable network, owned by Turner Broadcasting Systems—which also owns WCW—was apparently not happy with Taylor's involvement with the WWF, and released him from his color commentator role without public explanation shortly after Taylor agreed to the match. While Taylor wrestled and defeated Bam Bam Bigelow in the main event, the ground swell of publicity surrounding Taylor's appearance at the event did not translate to PPV buys outside of the Northeast. Overall, WrestleMania XI was financially less successful than WrestleMania X.

3—THE PAY-PER-VIEW SCHEDULE EXPANDS— AGAIN

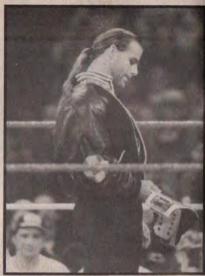

With the debut of In Your House on May 14, the WWF expanded its payper-view schedule to approximately one show per month, a move that put it on pace with WCW, and resulted in an unprecedented 20 PPV wrestling events in 1995 (seven more than in 1994, and nine more than in 1993). The expansion of PPV schedules by both organizations is a result of the enormous amount of money that can make off one PPV program, often more than a month's worth of non-televised events. Additionally, attendance at non-televised cards for both organizations has been declining for several years, to the point where many shows are no longer profitable and the overall number of live cards has decreased. The increase in PPV cards is desigend to offset those losses. However, more PPVs means more competition than ever for the wrestling fans' dollars. Is the market oversaturated? Possibly: PPV buy rates for wrestling overall are starting a slow but steady decline.

PAY-PER-VIEW EXPANDS - AGAIN

4—THE SHAWN MICHAELS ATTACK—AND COLLAPSE

On October 14, 1995, a sleeping Shawn Michaels was pulled out a parked car by several men in front of Club 37 in Syracuse, New York. Reports, ranging from four to 10 men, proceeded to pummel Michaels, who was unable to defend himself. At press time, one suspect had been arrested, Douglas D. Griffith, a 23-year-old soldier based at Fort Drum, who was charged with second-degree assault. The injuries proved severe enough to keep Michaels from wrestling on the In Your House pay-per-view eight days later; Michaels was forced to forfeit the Intercontinental title to Dean Douglas, who lost the title to Razor Ramon later that evening. Michaels remained out of the ring for a few weeks, but attempted a comeback against Owen Hart in November. That comeback came to an abrupt halt on November 20, when he collapsed in the ring on WWF Monday Night Raw. It was reported that Michaels was suffering from postconcussion syndrome, and as the year drew to a close, there were doubts remaining as to whether he would ever wrestle again.

5-NBC DROPS WRESTLEMANIA SPECIAL

For the first time since 1991, NBC put the WWF in its prime time schedule by agreeing to air a special one-hour broadcast of WrestleMania XI highlights on June 4. The deal, which was reportedly worth more than $200,000 to the WWF, would have provided major mainstream media exposure and a rare opportunity to appear before a non-wrestling audience. NBC, however, canceled the airing of the program at the 11th hour, claiming the director of programming services was on vacation when the network agreed to air the show and had it pulled when he returned. While losing the NBC deal was a major blow, the WWF regrouped and subsequently worked out a deal with the FOX network. The one-hour version of WrestleMania. featuring the Lawrence Taylor vs. Bam Bam Bigelow and Shawn Michaels vs. Diesel matches, aired on FOX on September 30 at 11 p.m. That meant the WWF had a substantially smaller potential audience than during prime time. Still, the special was success: 3.6 million homes watched the broadcast, making it the most widely viewed wrestling program of the year.

6-WRESTLING IN NORTH KOREA DRAWS 340,000

The first pro wrestling event ever to take place in Korea destroyed previous attendance records by drawing a reported 150,000 fans as part of the Pyongyang International Sports and Culture Festival For Peace on April 28. The second night shattered the previous night's record as 190,000 fans attended a card headlined by Antonio Inoki pinning Ric Flair. Until the North Korea card, the attendance record was held by the WWF's WrestleMania III, which Jammed 93,173 people into the Pontiac Silverdome in 1987. The two days of wrestling, which received media coverage around the world, generated gates of $7-million and $8.5million, respectively. WCW aired several of the matches that took place at the two-day festival on its "Collision In Korea" pay-per-view on August 8, which, in addition to the Inoki vs. Flair match, featured several Japanese wrestlers, Rick and Scott Steiner, Road Warrior Hawk, and 2 Cold Scorpio.

7—SMOKY MOUNTAIN WRESTLING SUSPENDS OPERATIONS

Smoky Mountain Wrestling promoted its last card on November 26, 1995. The organization, which brought traditional wrestling to an area of the country that had been neglected by the

FAREWELL, SMOKY MOUNTAIN ACTION

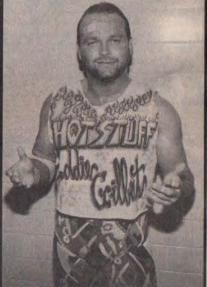

WWF, USWA, and WCW, had been suffering severe financial difficulties for some time. Over the past four years, SMW had provided fans with tremendous action and excitement, and brought such talented stars as The Heavenly Bodies, Tracey Smothers, and Tony Anthony into the consciousness of wrestling fans nationwide, as well as giving Jim Cornette a forum for his managerial talents and tirades. The folding of SMW may be a bad sign for a sport that is seeing a oncethriving independent scene continue to shrivel. If SMW, widely acknowledged as a high-quality independent organization, cannot survive, what are the chances of USWA, ECW, and other independents making it into the 21st century?

8-EDDIE GILBERT AND JOHN STUDD DIE

Eddie Gilbert, a second-generation wrestler considered one of the most talented stars in the sport, was found dead on February 18, the result of a heart attack. Gilbert held many titles in the '80s, but never achieved his goal of becoming a world champion. In the '90s, Gilbert became erratic, often remaining with a promotion for just a few months before moving on. Gilbert was loved by many in the profession, and his funeral was attended by more than 400 people.

Literally one of wrestling's biggest stars, John Studd died on March 20 from liver cancer. Studd entered the sport in 1972, and by the late-'70s was a headliner. Studd's combination of size and strength made him one of the toughest wrestlers ever to don tights. His feuds with Andre the Giant were legendary; once, Studd even cut Andre's hair! Noted for his nice disposition outside the ring, Studd became a gentle giant during his last days in the WWF in 1989. Age and injuries finally caught up with him, and he eventually retired after working the independent circuit. In 1993, he began a 17-month battle with Hodgkin's disease. He left behind a wife and three children.

9—THE BIG VAN VADER-PAUL ORNDORFF LOCKER ROOM BRAWL

A locker room altercation between Paul Orndorff and Big Van Vader on August 30 saw Orndorff clearly get the better of one of the toughest men in the sport—and led to Vader leaving WCW. The fight, which was instigated by Vader's belligerent behavior toward Orndorff, and fueled by Orndorff's challenges to Vader, led to a locker room melee with Orndorff dominating the 450-pound monster. After the fight was broken up by several wrestlers, Vader again challenged Orndorff—and again was destroyed by the 46-year-old veteran. For starting the backstage fight with Orndorff, Vader was indefinitely suspended by WCW—and was eventually dropped from WCW's roster. At press time, Vader is negotiating with several promotions in Japan, as well as the WWF. Should Vader wind up wrestling in the WWF, his 1995 brawl with Orndorff could be the one match that most affects the face of wrestling in 1996.

BIG VAN VADER LOSES A BIG BEHIND-THE-SCENES BRAWL

WWF PRESIDENT GORILLA MONSOON

10—GORILLA MONSOON REPLACES JACK TUNNEY AS WWF PRESIDENT

After years of making some of the most ludicrous decisions in the history of wrestling, WWF President Jack Tunney resigned. In his place, the WWF appointed an new president: commentator and former wrestling great Gorilla Monsoon, Monsoon, who has stated this is only a temporary position for him, has made a reputation for himself by giving fans matches they want to see. His first move was to pit Shawn Michaels against Razor Ramon at SummerSlam in a reprise of their infamous "ladder match." But he has also made his mistakes, most notably stripping Shawn Michaels of the Intercontinental title in October because Michaels could not wrestle after being attacked in Syracuse, New York. Monsoon, however, says he will make the decisions he feels are best, and is not worried about politics because the position is a temporary one. So far the results have been mixed, but substantially better than with Tunney at the helm.

1995: THE YEAR IN WRESTLING

In this section, we provide an overview of some of the more memorable events of the year just passed. For a look at memorable dates throughout wrestling history, turn to page 98.

JANUARY 6:

Randy Savage makes his WCW debut, defeating Avalanche in Birmingham, Alabama,

JANUARY 7

Tully Blanchard comes out of retirement to wrestle ECW champion Shane Douglas to a 60-minute draw at the ECW Arena in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

JANUARY 13:

Cactus Jack and Sabu continue to push the boundaries of professional wrestling by participating in a "bring your own weapon cage match" in Las Vegas. Weapons include tables, garbage cans, and a noose. Sabu wins when he leaps off of the cage and crashes through the timekeeper's table, thereby being the first wrestler to hit the floor

EDDIE GILBERT

JANUARY 19:

WWF World champion Diesel admits he took steroids for several years before joining the WWF, which has a strict drug testing policy, on Chet Coppock's NewSport talk show on the SportsChannel cable station.

JANUARY 22:

Jerry "Crusher" Blackwell dies as a result of complications from pneumonia; he was 45.

JANUARY 23:

Ray "The Crippler" Stevens undergoes triplebypass heart surgery at Hennepin County Hospital in Minnesota after suffering from a stroke. The surgery is successful, and Stevens makes a full recovery.

JANUARY 24:

Seven-time NWA World champion Harley Race suffers a broken hip and two broken hands in a car accident in Kansas City, Missouri.

FEBRUARY 13:

Former wrestler Paul "Butcher" Vachon's first bid in politics fails as he receives only 338 votes in the Canadian National Elections.

FEBRUARY 18:

Eddie Gilbert dies of a heart attack in his apartment in Isla Verde, Puerto Rico: he was 33.

FEBRUARY 18:

Roddy Piper makes a rare appearance at a wrestling card to present longtime Portland promoter Don Owen with a plaque commemorating Owen's decades-long career in the sport.

FEBRUARY 22:

The New York Post publishes a scathing article regarding the deaths of Eddie Gilbert and several other wrestlers who tragically died young. Two-time former WWF World champion Bruno Sammartino is quoted as saying, "It's time to clean up this business or abolish it, because it's nothing like it used to be. Right now, it's filled with human junk."

FEBRUARY 25:

Former NWA World champion Terry Funk returns to wrestling in the United States when he attacks Cactus Jack at the ECW Arena in Philadelphia.

TERRY FUNK ATTACKS CACTUS JACK

RODDY PIPER

FEBRUARY 26:

Smoky Mountain Wrestling shows signs of financial trouble when its supercard, Sunday Bloody Sunday II, draws only 1,100 fans—less than a third of the 4,000 in attendance just a year earlier.

MARCH 13:

Crush is arrested at his home in Kona, Hawaii, after narcotics officers search his home and discover 500 units of anabolic steroids and several unregistered semi-automatic guns. He is released on $10,275 bail.

MARCH 20:

John Studd dies of liver cancer in Fairfax Hospital near his home in Burke, Virginia, after a 17month battle with Hodgkin's disease; he was 46.

MARCH 28:

Lawrence Taylor receives major mainstream publicity when he has a public workout in New York's Times Square in preparation for his Wrestle-Mania XI bout against Bam Bam Bigelow.

14 Wrestling Almanac 1996

APRIL 2:

Former Miami Dolphin linebacker Kim Bokamper makes his pro wrestling debut, defeating Bobby Rogers in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

APRIL 7:

NWA champion Dan Severn wins the Ultimate Fighting Championship V in Charlotte, North Carolina

APRIL 8:

Boxer Oliver McCall, defending the WBC heavyweight title against Larry Holmes, dedicates the fight to John Studd, because Studd helped McCall when he was a young fighter. McCall retains his title via 12-round decision.

APRIL 28:

Fred Blassie suffers a heart attack that results in triple-bypass heart surgery on May 3. The former wrestler and manager makes a full recovery.

APRIL 28:

Approximately 150,000 fans attend a New Japan Pro Wrestling event in Korea, setting an attendance record that stands for one day, as nearly 190,000 fans attend the second day of wrestling at the Korean cultural festival.

APRIL 29:

Former NWA World champion Dick Hutton, who won three collegiate NCAA titles, is inducted into the National Wrestling Hall of Fame in Stillwater, Oklahoma.

MAY 5

An ECW show in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, is almost canceled by building security when they confiscate two boxes full of frying pans, cookie trays, and other foreign objects from fans.

MAY 6:

The Sheik, still semi-active at age 70, suffers a heart attack while getting into a taxi in Tokyo. He makes makes a full recovery.

THE SHEIK

MAY 10:

Wrestler Ilio Di Paulo, who gained international fame in 1954 when he defeated boxer Omelio Agramonte in a wrestler vs. boxer match in Haiti, dies after being struck by a car in Buffalo, New York; he was 68.

MAY 13:

The Boston Garden hosts its last prowrestling show ever, the WWF's "A Night To Remember."

MAY 25:

WWF World champion Diesel undergoes surgery to remove bone chips in his right elbow.

JUNE 10:

The Fabulous Ones—Steve Keirn and Stan Lane—team for the first time in more than three years, defeating Tommy Rich and Doug Gilbert in the main event of the USWA's Memphis Memories II supercard.

JUNE 24:

The Grand Wizard, Fabulous Moolah, Antonino Rocca, Ivan Putski, George "The Animal" Steele, Pedro Morales, and Ernie Ladd are inducted into the WWF Hall of Fame.

JULY 8:

Dennis Gauthier Jr., the son of former wrestler Denis Gauthier and nephew of Jacques and Raymond Rougeau, is selected in the first round of the NHL draft by the Calgary Flames.

JULY 12:

WWF President Jack Tunney resigns.

JULY 22:

The Ultimate Warrior wrestles his first match in more than two years before 2,000 fans in Las Vegas, Nevada; he defeats the Honky Tonk Man.

ULTIMATE WARRIOR VS. HONKY TONK MAN

JULY 23:

Pro wrestler Hiroshi Hase is elected to the Japanese House of Councilors.

JULY 22:

WWF preliminary wrestler Chuck Austin, to whom a federal jury awarded $26.7-million in an April 1994 lawsuit against the WWF, settles his dispute with the federation out of court. According to the settlement, Austin will receive approximately $7-million, while his legal team will receive approximately $3-million.

AUGUST 20:

Cactus Jack, once again proving he doesn't care about his body, pins Terry Funk (who doesn't care much for his body, either) in a "no-ropes barbed-wire explosive time bomb death match" in Kawakita, Japan.

AUGUST 25:

Wahoo McDaniel announces in Sports Collectors Digest that he will retire and join the pro bass fishing tour.

AUGUST 29:

Big Van Vader and Paul Orndorff are involved in a locker room brawl at Atlanta's Center Stage Theater that results in Vader's suspension and eventual dismissal from the organization.

SEPTEMBER 4:

WCW debuts Monday Nitro, live from The Mall of America in Bloomington, Minnesota. Top WWF star Lex Luger shocks the wrestling world by appearing on the show, speaking derisively about the WWF and its stars, and claiming he wants a shot at Hulk Hogan and the WCW World title; Hogan gives him that title shot a week later, and the match ends in disqualification when members of The Dungeon of Doom enter the ring.

LEX LUGER ON WCW MONDAY NITRO

SEPTEMBER 11:

WCW wins the first head-to-head meeting of Monday Nitro vs. Monday Night Raw, posting a 2.5 rating to Raw's 2.2.

SEPTEMBER 11:

Jesse Ventura scores a major victory when the U.S. Court of Appeals Eighth Circuit Court in St. Paul, Minnesota, affirms an April 3, 1994, verdict awarding Ventura $809,958 in a lawsuit against the WWF over his participation in wrestling videotapes.

SEPTEMBER 25:

Ted Turner agrees to sell TBS and all its holdings, including WCW, to Time Warner Inc., which would take control in 1996.

OCTOBER 2:

Former UWF commissioner and San Francisco 49er John Ayres dies of liver cancer; he was 42.

OCTOBER 14:

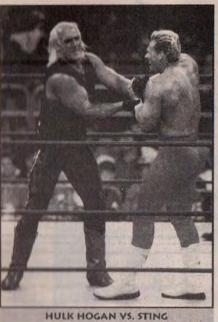

A sleeping Shawn Michaels is pulled out of a car in front of Club 37 in Syracuse, New York, and beaten by several men (reports range from four to 10), who flee the scene before police arrive.

OCTOBER 28:

Crush is sentenced to five years probation after pleading no-contest to 11 counts of drug and weapons charges.

OCTOBER 28:

A near-riot occurs at ECW Arena in Philadelphia when Cactus Jack brings a chair wrapped in a flaming towel that ignites part of Terry Funk's clothing. Funk flings the towel into the crowd, the lights go out, fire entinguishers are squirted toward the crowd, and panic ensues.

OCTOBER 29

Hulk Hogan pushes The Giant off the roof of Cobo Hall following a monster truck battle between the two men.

OCTOBER 29:

Jimmy Hart, manager and confidente to Hulk Hogan for years, turns against the "Hulkster."

NOVEMBER 20:

NOVEMBER 20:

Sting and Hulk Hogan battle for the first time ever on a WCW Monday Nitro broadcast live from Macon, Georgia; the bout is disrupted about 10 minutes in when The Dungeon of Doom interferes.

NOVEMBER 22:

The New York Post reports that federal prosecutors and the FBI are investigating the possibility of witness tampering prior to last year's Vince McMahon steroid trial.

NOVEMBER 26:

Smoky Mountain Wrestling announces in Cookeville, Tennessee, that it is closing down operations.

DECEMBER 4

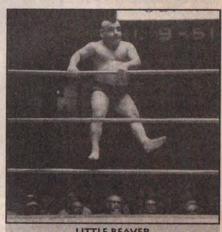

Legendary midget wrestler Little Beaver dies in Montreal following a six-month battle with emphysema; he was 61.

DECEMBER 16:

NWA champion Dan Severn wins The Ultimate Ultimate competition in Denver, Colorado.

DECEMBER 18:

Alundra Blayze appears on WCW Monday Nitro and throws her WWF World women's title belt in the garbage.

LITTLE BEAVER

1996 A LOOK AHEAD

In the year-end edition of Pro Wrestling Illustrated, PWI staffers looked back on the previous year to recall their most vivid memories of 1995. In this PWI ALMANAC feature, PWI staffers look ahead—and predict where the sport is headed in the next 12 months.

Stu Saks (Publisher): What wrestling lacks as we pass the midway point of the decade is a superstar in the true sense of the word: one man who transcends the sport and reaches the consciousness of the general public, as Hulk Hogan did in the mid-1980s. While the popularity of wrestling is still higher than it was before the surge of Hulk-McMania in the '80s, it has certainly dropped off some in the '90s. The sport needs to reach out to the mainstream once again if it is ever to get back to where it was at its height. And that's where that one megastar comes into play. Quite frankly, I don't know who that star will be, but I do know that it has been so long since the sport has had one, the time is due. Why not 1996?

IS AHMED JOHNSON THE NEXT MEGASUPERSTAR THE SPORT IS SEEKING? JOHNSON WOULD LIKE TO THINK SO, BUT PROBABLY NOT:
WRESTLING HAD ITS FILL OF PURE POWER GRAPPLERS IN THE '80S.

Craig Peters (Associate Publisher): It's getting to be a cliche, I suppose, to say this, but I think we're in for one of the most interesting years the sport has seen in a long, long time. The WWF, which has been a powerhouse for more than a decade, is on the wane, having lost a huge amount of talent to both WCW and the injury list; but Vince McMahon is not about to sit still, and I'm sure he has some interesting promotional ideas up his sleeve. Meanwhile, WCW is gaining plenty of attention with the superstars of a decade ago, and broadening its roster by bringing in stars from ECW, AAA, and Japan: I think that will continue, and the average fan will become more educated about wrestling worldwide. And while ECW remains as cutting-edge as can be, its appeal is limited; that fact, plus the demise of Smoky Mountain Wrestling, doesn't bode well for the health of the independent scene, I'm afraid.

ECW BOUTS—LIKE AXL VS. IAN ROTTEN—OFFER PLENTY OF BLOOD AND GORE, BUT THEIR APPEAL IS LIMITED TO A RELATIVELY SMALL HARDCORE FOLLOWING.

letic skills.

MASA CHONO VS. JOHNNY B. BADD IS ONE OF THE WCW/NEW JAPAN CROSSOVER MATCHES THAT IS HELPING U.S. FANS BECOME MORE EDUCATED ABOUT THE SPORT WORLDWIDE.

Bill Apter (Senior Editor): I'm afraid I'm not very optimistic. The Ultimate Fighting Championships are getting more and more popular and doing very well on pay-per-view. Extreme Championship Wrestling is getting more violent by the day. I see our sport as a whole getting bloodier and more violent just so promoters can appease viewers who live for the blood and gore. In the case of ECW, it seems like promoters and wrestlers just try to make each show more outrageous than the last one. How much more extreme can it get? All I can say is I hope I'm wrong and 1996 turns into a year in which true sportsmen like Alex Wright can show off their magnificent ath-

Dave Lenker (Managing Editor): I think we got a clue as to where the sport is headed in 1996 in August '95. That's when WCW signed Eddy Guerrero, Dean Malenko, Chris Benoit, and Sabu. Someone in the executive offices of WCW finally realized that the most exciting wrestlers in the world aren't necessarily the ones who weigh 300 pounds and spend six hours per day pumping iron. I see '96 as the year the Guerreros, Malenkos, Benoits, and others like them finally get their due in the big American federations. World champion Eddy Guerrero perhaps? Vince McMahon ought to realize that the two best wrestlers are Bret Hart and Shawn Michaels. Neither is "larger than life," but both are exciting to watch. He might want to tinker with his talent roster a bit. I see '96 as the year of the great all-around athlete in wrestling.

WILL 1996 BE THE YEAR WRESTLING REDISCOVERS WRESTLING?

PERHAPS THE INDEPENDENT SCENE WILL STAGE A RALLY IN THE MONTHS TO COME.

Brandi Mankiewicz (Associate Editor): Although Smoky Mountain Wrestling folded in November '95, I do believe that most independent federations will continue to flourish. I think the fans will soon grow tired of the "Big Two" battle and return to the smaller promotions where there are no pyrotechnics, really huge egos, or costly pay-per-view shows nearly every month. The loyalty of fans tollowing ECW, USWA, and others seems to be increasing as people look for something not as commercial as WCW or the WWF. I think fans are looking at all the "new" talent like Chris Benoit, Dean Malenko, and Al Snow coming into WCW and the WWF from the independent circuit and are curious as to where the next rising star will come from one of the tiniest wrestling promotions.

David Rosenbaum (Senior Writer): Shock sells. Howard Stern has the highest-rated morning radio show in America and his second best-selling book. Unfortunately, when one shock barrier is broken, another has to be set up so it can be broken down. We're seeing that in wrestling, where wrestlers are doing more and more outrageous things to gain the attention of promoters. Ten years ago, Adrian Adonis was enough. Now we have Dustin Rhodes as Goldust. What's going on in ECW these days isn't about violence, it's about shock, pushing the envelope. We're shocked when brothers feud or when commissioners get attacked by referees. What's next in '96? Who knows? One sure thing: It'll shock us all.

GOLDUST IS MORE ABOUT SHOCK THAN SUBSTANCE

Eddie Ellner (Senior Writer): All I can say is I hope we see more new talent in the major federations. If you've read my columns over the years, you'll know that a lot of the grizzled veterans are still my favorites. I guess I'll always love watching Stan Hansen, but I hope '96 is the year established stars like Hulk Hogan finally learn to step aside and let the younger stars have more of the spotlight. Because as much as we love to watch these older stars, we have to realize that they can't go on forever. And if they keep hogging the spotlight, that means the young guys won't get the attention they deserve. Maybe one reason there aren't many young megastars out there today is that the older megastars refuse to give the young guys a chance to develop and shine. That has to change if wrestling is to continue to thrive.

IS THE REASON THAT YOUNG STARS (LIKE HUNTER HEARST HELMSLEY AND BOB HOLLY) CAN'T BREAK THROUGH TO SUPERSTARDOM BECAUSE THE AGING SUPERSTARS WON'T STEP ASIDE AND MAKE ROOM FOR THEM?

Jason Ross Lavin (Photo Editor): I know we saw quite a bit of cooperation between federations in the last year or two, but I don't see that continuing. We're going to see more fans identifying with one promotion the way most fans of other sports identify with one team. I've covered dozens of ECW shows during the last three years, so I know all about the hardcore ECW fans who back that federation and that federation only. And don't forget how loyal the fans of Smoky Mountain and the USWA were this fall during the SMW-USWA war. Plus, since WCW put Monday Nitro on the air opposite the WWF's Monday Night Raw, the war between the "Big Two" has heated up. It's as if federations are telling people, "Don't be just a wrestling fan. Be a fan of our promotion and no other!" I'm not sure that's good for wrestling.

CAN FAN LOYALTY GO TOO FAR? TATTOOING "ECW" ON YOUR ARM IS A COMMITMENT, TO BE SURE, BUT SUCH INTENSE LOYALTY TO ONE PROMOTION MAY NOT HELP WRESTLING AS A WHOLE.

WRESTLER PROFILES

s part of the first-ever PWI ALMANAC, we wanted to include a section profiling the top stars in the sport today. Then, along came our sister publication, the 1996 WRESTUNG ANNUAL, which did exactly that. What to do? Well, in case you missed that 100-page annual, we're revisiting (and, in many cases, updating) those "profiles with an attitude." And even if you did see that annual, we've provided even more information: In addition to heights, weights, and years pro for each wrestler (for more specific stats, see page 74), we've also given you a listing for the most recent PWI centerfold of that star (in case you want to research your back issues for more complete biographical and career information), plus a comprehensive retrospective of "PWI 500" listings for each of the stars in this section.

Here's a complete directory of who's profiled on the pages that follow:

ouble A" is double-tough, but he was double-trouble for Ric Flair, defeating the "Nature Boy" at Fall Brawl ... Yeah, Brian Pillman interfered, but ... First, we thought maybe it was Flair just getting a taste of his own medicine ... Now we know more ... In retrospect, looks like a Horseman audition was set up by Arn and Ric for Pillman ... Passed with flying colors ... We hear Chris Benoit is headed into the fold, too ... Arn's a better tag team wrestler than a singles star, and has the guts to admit it ... You gotta love his interviews; quiet, but intimidating ... In-ring style is equally intense ... Shocked the wrestling world in 1993 by being involved in a doublestabbing hotel fight with Sid Vicious ... Talk about intimidating! ... Was there any residual anger from Sid having received a $1-million Horseman bonus payment from Ric Flair back in 1991? ... Sure, Arn, sure ... The Arn-Flair relationship is clearly a friendship made in wrestling heaven ... Can the Horsemen possibly thrive a decade after their formation? ... Why not? ... Imagine the effectiveness of an Anderson-Benoit team ... Or Anderson-Pillman ... Or Anderson-Flair ... (But would Flair really want to leave solo competition for long?) ... (Probably not) ... We'd place our money on seeing Arn with the WCW World tag team belt around his waist sometime in 1996 ... In fact, go ahead and bet the farm ... Don't underestimate his behindthe-scenes strategic value to the Horsemen, either.

ormer amateur boxing champion is said to have a great left hand, although we never really cared to find out for ourselves ...
Started his career as a rulebreaker, known as manager Teddy Long's gift to WCW ... For a while there, had us asking, "Excuse me? Where's the return department? This just doesn't fit right" ... Wore more makeup than senior citizens at a Florida condominium, and had matching pretty-in-pink outfits Doesn't look much like Molly Ringwald, though ... Does, however, bear a striking resemblance to rock 'n' roll legend Little Richard ... Both are natives of Macon, Georgia ... Became one of WCW's most popular wrestlers when he severed ties with Teddy Long ... Narrowly edged out of the 1991 PWI Rookie of the Year award by P.N. News ... Nice call, voters! ... Although Badd remains in the WCW Top 10, he's an afterthought to most fans when pondering the sport's top performers ... It's very hard for opponents to take him seriously ... Even after they're stunned by one of the best sunset flips in the sport ... Maybe it's all the fringe in his outfits ... Speaking of fringe, look for Badd to edge away from the fringes of WCW competition as his TV title reign continues to build up momentum ... Could pose a stiff threat to the U.S. title ... But for how long? ... Has shown a tendency to choke in big matches ... Has the potential to pull it all together and wear some gold, though ... Needs to keep focused—on more than just his makeup and ring outfits ... And needs to get past his feud with Diamond Dallas Page quickly.

CHRIS BENOIT

ail the newest Horseman!
... This scientific standout is Calgary-grown, Japan-polished, and ready to break out in a big way in WCW ... Wait a second, haven't we heard that somewhere once before? ... status helped much back in 1993 when he was wrestling in WCW? ... Not really ... Wrestled some awesome matches, though, and continues to do the same ... Pardon our cynicism, but despite Benoit's tremendous skills, we just can't see him becoming the next Hulk Hogan, Sting, or Randy Savage ... More likely to become the next Terry Taylor ... Hope we're wrong, fear we're right ... Benoit's not the kind of guy to paint his hair red, though; he's a solid grappler all the way ... "This time it's for keeps," Benoit said "WCW fans better get used to me, because I'm here to stay" ... Glad he thinks so ... Teamed with Bobby Eaton in his first WCW stint ... Duo was great, but barely registered a blip on the WCW tag team scene ... Reportedly, the tandem suffered from a lot of infighting ... That's no way to win a championship ... Has a great flying headbutt ... That's kind of like calling somebody a good kamikaze pilot ... Comes to WCW fresh (!) from ECW ... "Crippler" Chris could make some serious waves in WCW-if the matchmakers don't hold him down ... Again.

decided, "Maybe this job isn't for me"... Decided to play it safe and became a pro wrestler ... Trained at Larry Sharpe's Monster Factory in Laurel, New Jersey, and was featured on A Current Affair ... Showed promise on A Current Affair when, unlike most wrestlers, he didn't bodyslam or headbutt the interviewer and camera man ... Has since shown similar killer instinct ... Besides winning the Mid-South title in Memphis and other independent titles here and there, Bigelow has never lived up to the media's lofty expectations ... Perhaps because although he has surprising aerial skills for a bia man, he overestimates his ability and often misses on the high-risk maneuvers ... The bigger they are, the harder they fall ... Extremely popular in Japan, where she now does most of her wrestling ... Had a wild feud with Luna Vachon in which she nearly had her hair torn out ... Fortunately, however, around that time a little federation called ECW grew up in Pennsylvania ... It was the perfect home for Cactus Jack ... Doesn't care much for belts, though ... More interested in mayhem ... We can only imagine what the demons inside his head sound like ... Clearly they have very insistent voices ... Doubtful whether he'll ever again get a chance in WCW or the WWF ... Or if he even wants one ... Jack is his own man and perfectly fit for the Monsoon giveth and Monsoon taketh away ... Diesel's good nature saw him lose his edge as 1995 was winding down ... Then came Survivor Series ... And Bret Hart ... In the 1996 PWI Wrestling Annual, we suggested that Diesel's reign might end after facing the best allaround wrestler in the federation ... We meant Michaels, but on second thought-! ... very bad idea ... Later in the year, Douglas left WCW and returned to the independent circuit ... Another very bad idea ... In late-1995, jumped to the WWF and billed himself as Dean Douglas ... Gives grades to wrestlers after their matches ... Thinks Razor Ramon is an idiot ... Talk about taking the most dangerous route to a feud! ... On the scale of WWF characters, is slightly more appealing than Brother Love and the Red Rooster, though not quite as endearing as Jerry Lawler ... Could probably teach The Kid a few lessons ... Like in how to tear apart a championship belt ... Did just that in 1994 after winning a tournament for the NWA title ... At the time, also held the ECW title ... Made the observation that one belt was virtually worthless and the other actually meant something ... We won't tell you how we thought ... Actually, we think Douglas should take a very good look at his WWF paycheck and compare it to his independent paychecks. Then he should consult his accountant and come to the following conclusion: "I like making money. I like it here in the WWF because they pay me a lot of money. Who cares if I have to go along with this stupid Dean gimmick? I am rolling in the dough."

... Signed with the WWF in the mid-1980s ... Despite his popularity and staying power, Duggan never got title shots and has had to be content as a middle-of-the-card wrestler ... Currently lost in the WCW shuffle ... What, you say? WCW never had a shuffle? ... Well, it does now that Hulk Hogan is in the federation ... Last year, Duggan tried to tag along on Hogan's coattails, only to get left behind ... Fights to the finish with Big Bubba Rogers have been impressive, but we're not sure where they put him in terms of eventual title shots ... It's hard to see the brawling Duggan making any in-roads toward a title shot over the next year or two, nor has he made any attempts toward that goal ... On the other hand, what's he supposed to do, go back to Glens Falls and work in the lumber mill? ... Can't blame him for hanging on ... what's he waiting for? ... Does he think the new Four Horsemen can help him get the gold again?

Hey, if Hulk Hogan can be champion again, maybe anything's possible ... Became great by perfecting the figure-four lealock, one of the most devastating submission holds in history ... Oddly, though, doesn't get many submissions with the move ... It's a great tool for wearing down an opponent, though ... By the way, Ric: Time to control that uncontrollable flip over the corner ... Everyone knows by now to follow up with the clothesline on the ring apron ... Grew up idolizing "Nature Boy" Buddy Rogers, who also didn't know when to guit ... Figures to stick around WCW until a better offer comes along ... Probably not from the WWF again ... We wouldn't mind seeing him replace Steve McMichael in the broadcast booth ... Can't deny that Flair is among the very best wrestlers ever ... Also can't deny that his best years are behind him ... Does he have it in him to go out gracefully? ... Probably not ... If he did, he'd still be "retired" ... Can't resist the urge to go for just one more champi-and mid-level star in nearly every federation in nearly every arena in the world ... If you're a wrestling fan and you've never seen Terry Funk live, you're not really a wrestling fan ... ECW battles with Sabu are still considered classics, as are his WCW battles with Ric Flair ... Fans in the United States can't imagine the magnitude of his celebrity in Japan ... Although people say he's mean, the truth is that Funk has an incredible competitive instinct ... He needs to winand is willing to die trying ... Started his wrestling career in 1965 ... As a point of reference, that was two years before Super Bowl I ... The NHL had six teams ... Michael Jordan hadn't started nursery school ... And Hulk Hogan was strumming on his first play quitar ... Although Funk's days as a major singles champion are over, Slater's success in WCW leads us to believe that Funk can still win a major tag team title ... The problem is that he keeps bouncing from federation to federation ... Has hinted at retirement several times over the past year ... The Gangstas—Mustafa Saed and New Jack—are one of the most controversial and toughest tag teams in the world ... Recently feuded with Public Enemy in a series of matches that lent credence to the warning, "Kids, don't try this at home!" ... Have something in common with many other wrestlers in that they hate Jim Cornette more than any man in the world ... The Gangstas are yet another of the '90s era of teams that grew up on the mean streets of the inner-cities ... Rely very heavily on street-smarts and brawling tactics ... No, they're not from the Lou Thesz school ... Saed is big and strong ... New Jack is mean and dangerous ... Actually, you can switch the names in those two statements if you want, too ... Neither of them are very bright, though ... They're consumed by hatred and prejudice and have become infamous for their racist comments ... Recommendation to the tag team hopefuls of the world: If you decide to go by the nickname Fuhrman & Van Atter or The L.A.P.D., make sure you don't wrestle The Gangstas ... Considering their attitude and comments, we can't see either of the big two federations taking a chance on them ... Nor do we see The Ganastas caring about that ... Discussing their future is ridiculous, because the only thing Saed and Jack care about is kicking butt ... The Gangstas will continue to make their

at the May 14, 1995, In Your House ... Hakushi dominated early in the match and injured Hart's left leg; Shinja interfered, but it wasn't enough ... Makes you wonder what Hakushi's made of ... Later in the card, Hakushi's interference cost Hart his match against Jerry Lawler ... Pinned The Kid at SummerSlam '95 ... Now follow the bouncing ball: Wrestles Bret Hart at one PPV, wrestles The Kid at the next ... That's not what we call career progress ... Didn't wrestle at the next In Your House ... Ditto ... Has now formed an alliance with Barry Horowitz and is helping Horowitz battle Skip ... Indications, however, are that Hakushi has far more talent than that and merely needs the proper guidance ... Or maybe to just be left alone ... Although not as reckless as Sabu or as big as Yokozuna, Hakushi has enough overall skill to be a threat in the WWF and maybe contend for the Intercontinental title ... ooker T and Stevie Ray hail from Harlem, New York; not a neighborhood that produces pampered weaklings ... Managed by Sister Sherri, formerly Scary Sherri, formerly Sensational Sherri, formerly Sherri Martel ... Sherri's in love with Col. Robert Parker and the Heat don't like it, mostly because Parker manages Bunkhouse Buck and Dick Slater ... This love triangle (although we're not exactly sure where the other point of the triangle lies) could get Harlem Heat in trouble if Sherri slips secrets to her new lover or runs off and hides with the Colonel ... Wouldn't you know it: With Sherri distracted, Harlem Heat wasted no time losing the WCW World tag team title to Marcus Alexander Bagwell and Scotty Riggs ...

Sure, they won the belts back, but they had no business losing in the first place ... For a while there, it looked like the WCW tag picture was improving: Harlem Heat had rounded into top form, and The Nastys Boys were as nasty as ever; even Slater and Buck looked good, too ... Perhaps it's time for Harlem Heat to dump Sherri and find themselves a new manager ... Our choice: Paula Barbieri ... Although in most cases tag teams fare better with a manager than without one, Harlem Heat could be an exception ... Booker T and Stevie Ray made it on their own by fighting for survival in the mean streets of uptown Manhattan ... They've done everything on their own and never asked for favors ... They're at the point where they don't need any breaks ... The Martel situation is an unnecessary distraction ... If the Steiners come to WCW, the tag team battle will get even hotter. Harlem Heat must be ready for the war.

hree-time WWF World champion" sounds pretty good, Bret! ... That was quite a match at Survivor Series '95 ... Showed a lot more guts and determination than we've seen in quite a while ... Does this mean Lawler thinks Hart will be his avenue to the World title? ... Would've thought Lawler learned his lesson the last time, when he had to suck on Hart's feet ... Yeach! ... Then Lawler was forced to suck on his own feet ... The fact that Hart was taken to the limit by Lafitte at the September 24 In Your House pay-per-view suggests to us that "The Hitman" was a little off his best game in '95 ... That's what happens when you go seven months without fighting for the World title . Got it back quickly enough November, though ... Signature move, the "sharpshooter," remains one of the most effective finishing moves in the sport .. Using an exposed turnbuckle with the padding removed was pretty effective, too ... Right, Diesel? ... At press time, the questions remain: Did Bret pay too high a price to win back the belt? ... Is the knee injury he suffered at the hands of Diesel at Survivor Series more serious than we're led to believe? ... Did that crash through the announcers' table leave any lasting effects or injuries? ... Bret is not entering his third reign at 100 percent ... nice, but they don't seem to be the highest priorities on Owen's list ... The calling circle on his long-distunce account is more like a dot ... Five years ago, Owen looked like a sure thing to break through as one of the top scientific and aerial wrestlers in the world ... Then the WWF put him under a mask as The Blue Blazer and it's been downhill since then ... Most recently, Yokozuna sat on Owen Hart ... Ouch! ... It hurt even worse a week earlier when he and Yokozuna lost the WWF World tag belts to Shawn Michaels and Diesel in the process ... One day later, WWF President Gorilla Monsoon returned the belts to Hart and Yokozuna, who promptly lost them to The Smokin' Gunns ... Perhaps it's time for somebody to remind Owen that he's a former King of the Ring who's best suited for singles wrestling ... Even if Owen can't put aside his bad feelings toward Bret, perhaps he can forget about Bret and get on with his wrestling career ... Or maybe not, now that Bret's champ again ... eavenly Bodies Tom Prichard and Jim Del Ray were the first non-WWF team to wrestle or a WWF pay-per-view ... They regained the Smoky Mountain tag team belts from The Rod 'n' Roll Express at the 1993 Survivor Series ... Failed in several attempts to win the WW World tag team title ... Also failed to keep manager Jim Cornette's attention ... As this is written their future is unclear now that SMW has folded ... One would have to assume a return to the WWF is very possible ... Why now? The WWF is the home of The Smokin' Gunns. It'll take any body ... Then again, WCW is pretty busy scarfing up talent these days ... The Heavenly Bodies are the classic combination a outstanding scientific wrestle (Prichard) and solid brawle (Del Ray) ... This combination hasn't been as effective as one might expect, although the Bodies have been an efficient though overworked, tag team ... In reality, the Bodies remain among the most promising tag teams in North America and should be able to take a run a a world title ... Maybe they need some convincing ... And where does Jim Cornette fit into their futures? ... Or does he a all? ... Problem with Cornette is that he was always comparing them to The Midnight Express ... Jimbo spends too much time living in the past ... Now he's forced to think about his future ... So are Prichard and De Ray ... Nitro, coincidentally ... Not! ... Undoubtedly the most famous and popular wrestler in history ... Don't believe what he says about taking vitamins, eating right, and working out if you don't want ... But believe this: Hogan looks pretty good for a guy who has been getting beaten up for 18 years ... Biggest knock against him has always been that he doesn't wrestle enough; in WCW, he has gone long stretches—far more than the allowed 30 days-without defending the World title ... Federations will always be lenient with him because they're so grateful to have him around ... Able to fill small and tall buildings with a single appearance ... great singer, he's a great wrestler, too ... Ludicrous, right? ... Well, turn the story around and you have Jeff Jarrett, the man who spent 10 years wrestling in independent federations, then insisted on being a singer when he finally got his big break in the WWF ... Jerry Jarrett's son made a bad decision when he didn't hold his tongue about supposed "production details" at the July 23 1995, In Your House pay-perview in Nashville, Tennessee .. Whether or not he can sing, Jarrett is a talented wrestler with outstanding scientific skills and areat stamina ... It always seemed as if only his size could keep him from getting his big break ... Then Jarrett developed a little attitude and his size didn't matter so much anymore ... Nonetheless, he has gained the attention of the major federations and figures to be back in the WWF or signed by WCW in no time ... him—until Undertaker destroyed him a few dozen times ... Outstanding martial artist has discovered, much to his dismay, that all of the karate chops in the world don't work on a dead man ... Thanks to Undertaker, Kama is far too familiar with what the inside of a casket looks like ... Like most people, Kama firmly believes that a person should never actually see the inside of a casket ... Just because Kama can't beat Undertaker doesn't mean he has no chance in the WWF ... If he waits a while, Undertaker will go on another one of his long vacations to Death Valley, and Kama can unleash his considerable skills on other federation stars ... Kama's biggest obstacle isn't really Undertaker, it's Ted DiBiase ... For the longest time, DiBiase refused to pit Kama against anybody but Undertaker ... Can you say "Fight your own battles, Mr. 'Million-Dollar Man'"? ... Best move for Kama would be to go without a manager and try to sign his own matches ... Nothing positive can result from the Undertaker feud ... Can go one of two ways in '96: Languish among the mid-carders, or break out in a big way ... Which way he goes is all up to him and his killer instinct.

THE 1-2-3 KID

The 1-2-3 Kid looks like he might be one of those people who calls the offices of London Publishing every day and asks, "How do I become a pro wrestler?" ... As Steve Martin said in his skit, "How to be a millionaire and never pay taxes"—first you need a million dollars ... In the 1-2-3 Kid's case, first you need superb athleticism, even if it's contained within a smaller-than-usual wrestling body ... Then you need somebody to notice you and realize that even though you're not very big, you have the talent to make it in the big time ... Finally, you need a promoter who realizes that your size can make you a hero and role model to the 99 percent of the population that isn't as big as pro wrestlers ... All this is about as easy as being a millionaire and never paving taxes ... First perceived as a joke, the Kid legitimized himself when he pinned Razor Ramon in 1993 ... Since then, the Kid's life has revolved around Ramon ... Enemies ... Friends ... Enemies ... Friends again ... What's next? ... You figure it out ... What would the Kid do if Ramon ever left the federation? ... Follow him, probably ... Although the Kid has wrestled just about every top star in the WWF, his wins have been few and far between, though celebrated ... People are still shocked when he wins ... Heck, he's still shocked when he wins! ... But the idea of him contending for a major title in the WWF is absolutely ludicrous ... The Kid rarely wins when a top opponent takes him seriously ... Mountain ... Where will he spend most of his 1996? ... Was among the top contenders to Brad Armstrong's heavyweight title ... Also feuded with Tommy Rich ... Landell and Rich were tag team partners in the USWA ... Actually, a lot of guys in wrestling can say they're a former tag team partner of Landell's ... Landell is such a solid and consistent competitor that he's probably capable of winning the major title in any independent federation ... Will probably be forced to test that theory in the months to come ... Took Brad Armstrong to the limit in a best-of-threefalls match ... At his age, Landell is probably better suited to one-fall matches in which stamina isn't a major concern ... Equally effective in tag team and singles matches ... Landell goes into each year knowing that although there are new feuds on his horizon, there won't be any drastic changes to his career ... Had settled into a comfortable career routine in Smoky Mountain, but will have to seriously rethink his future ... Can remain a top independent star for the rest of this decade—if he so desires.

World champion ... He's the guy who decided to defend that belt in every federation against every champion ... Has wrestled and defeated just about every top star in the world, including Ric Flair, Hulk

Lawler's the perfect counterpart to the fan favoriteloving McMahon ... Occasionally says the wrong things and draws himself into feuds, like his current one with Bret Hart ... Lawler has this habit of belittling Hart's family ... Hart has this habit of getting revenge ... Last year, Lawler lost a match and had to suck on Hart's toes ... Then he sucked on his own feet, which hadn't been washed in a week ... In the coming year, we see Lawler washing his feet much more often ... Especially when he has a match with Hart coming up ... Lawler would rather wrestle in the USWA and talk in the WWF, and that's the way it's mostly going to stay ... World title in WCW, where it all began, where he is today ... Actually, Luger started his career in Florida and quickly moved on the heart of the NWA ... The first bad career move was trusting J.J. Dillon ... The biggest bad career move, though, was leaving WCW and joining Vince McMahon's World Bodybuilding Federation ... Made a great career move by returning to WCW at a time when the federation was desperate for WCW Monday Nitro ratings ... Luger's "torture rack" backbreaker is one of the most painful submission holds in wrestling ... Was able to put Hulk Hogan into the rack upon WCW return, but the match had to be stopped when Kevin Sullivan and company rushed the ring ... Allowed himself to be drawn into a feud with Randy Savage ... Once again, Luger has been caught in the trap of wrestling the wrong people for the wrong reasons ... If Luger's life goes according to past performances, he'll spend too much time with Savage ... And maybe Sting, too ... Finally, when he does get his shots at the World title, he'll be too worn out to do anything about it ... Or will he?

taking off in perspective: We always wondered how those big 747s ever got off the ground ... Watch out, big man, You're on the verge of falling heavily under the influence of Jim Cornette ... But in less than one year, Mabel has gone from overweight curiosity to overweight top challenger to the WWF World title ... Lost to Diesel at SummerSlam '95 ... With Davey Boy Smith, Shawn Michaels, The Undertaker, and others ahead of him on the contenders line, we don't see Mabel getting too many more title shots in the near future ... Then again, Mabel is the type of wrestler who has a habit of "falling" into things and could very possibly "fall" into the WWF World championship merely by "falling" on top of the champion at the right time ... Most devastating moves are executed at McDonald's and Burger King, where Mabel adds to his already impressive girth ... According to insiders, two more Whoppers and he might have beaten Diesel in that Summer-Slam bout ... title, that is ... Let's face it, Vega isn't Diesel or Shawn Michaels ... Speaking of Diesel, "Big Daddy Cool" has put Mercy on ice, too ... We're not sure what Diesel was doing defending his World heavyweight championship against Mercy ... And people complained about Jean-Pierre Lafitte getting a title shot! ... Diesel squashing him is what we'd call a Mercy killing ... We've spent a lot of time trying to find people who benefited most from the exodus of top WWF talent to WCW (Hulk Hogan, Randy Savage, Lex Luger, etc.) and came up with Mercy: If not for the exodus, Mercy would still be wrestling independents ... Has about as much chance of winning a major title as the New York Jets have of winning the Super Bowl ... No offense to Jets fans, of course ... Must be doing something right, because the WWF keeps matching him against top opponents ... Has also lost to Fatu and battled him to double-disqualifications ... Come on, now: Can you honestly see any truly great WWF wrestler going down to his sleeper? ... If Mercy plays his cards right, he can rise to solid middle-of-the-card status and make a pretty good living ... But if he doesn't, 1996 could be a very rough year.

Yeah, "mean" might not be the word you'd use to describe Allentown, which doesn't sound nearly as imposing as Harlem or South Central Los Angeles, but have you ever been in Allentown or know of it from anything but an old Billy Joel song? ... Whether or not the streets of Allentown are mean, they certainly turned Sags and Knobs into one of the meanest and toughest tag teams in the world ... Are top contenders to the WCW World tag team title ... Brawling tag team is one of those duos that will take four or five punches in order to land one good one ... Sags and Knobs never planned on entering a beauty contest ... Former WCW World tag title holders are odds-on favorites to regain their belts at some point this year ... One of only a few teams to capture both the WWF and WCW World tag team titles ... Specialize in falls-count-anywhere matches ... Or any match in which the rules are suspended ... Hate rules ... The WCW tag team picture has turned into a foursome with The Nasty Boys, Harlem Heat, The Blue Bloods, and Marcus Alexander Bagwell & Scotty Riggs at different corners of the federation ring ... Survival of the fittest could be the rule ... The Nasty Boys cause damage to nasal passages when they rub their armpits against opponents' faces ... Nobody ever said these were the kind of guys you wanted to invite to your wedding.

Unfortunately for Page, there's no such thing as the WCW World arm-wrestling championship, so he should keep on brushing up on the mat skills ... Especially if he's gonna battle Johnny B. Badd ... It's hard to imagine him making any kind of a run at the WCW's top dogs ... WCW World champion Dallas Page? No. probably not ... Scored a shocker when he defeated The Renegade for the WCW TV title ... Then again, examine the facts: Renegade has no clue about how to throw even a basic dropkick, and Max Muscle was holding Renegade's leg during the pin ... The best thing Page has going for him is confidence and a total lack of fear ... Page goes into the ring thinking there's no way he's going to lose ... He might be the only person in the building who thinks that way, but that kind of attitude can't hurt ... And, in the year to come, it could net him the TV title once again ... This time for chosen the fastest route to rebuilding his stalled career: He attacked Ric Flair at Fall Brawl '95, kneeing him in the back of the head ... That led to victory for Arn Anderson ... A few weeks later at WCW in the Flair-Anderson cage match ... Of course, as we've since learned, it was all an elaborate audition for Pillman to become a Horseman ... See our profile on Am Anderson for further reference ... Although Pillman performs best with a quick teammate who can work with him on combination moves, he has proven to be a very capable singles wrestler ... Pillman's one of those guys who never makes any career progress, because he seems to always be going sideways ... At least he's not going backward ... (Then again, anyone else remember The Yellow Dog?) ... Another problem is his attitude. We're not sure Pillman's cut out to be a rulebreaker. He's too handsome and soft-spoken. When he gets mad, we just want to laugh ... Then again, if one aerial maneuver is worth a thousand scowls ... Killer instinct on interviews is one thing; killer instinct in the ring is something else, again, and Pillman has itin spades.

If they're not either dead or bleeding to death by the time this appears, Rocco Rock and Johnny Grunge will continue to be among the most exciting and brutally violent tag teams in the world ... Foreign objects abound in their matches, with ironing boards, frying pans, cheese graters, water coolers, and tables all finding their way into the mix ... Throw in a few miracle mops, a miracle defroster, and a bamboo steamer or two, and ECW shows could become infomercials ... Have wrestled together for roughly three years ... Are former ECW tag team champions ... Although mostly a brawling team, both have several high-risk maneuvers in their repertoires ... Grunge enjoys performing moonsaults onto wooden tables ... Although Rock and Grunge have been successful so far. continued success will mean getting away from their long-running feud with The Gangstas and moving on to other teams or federations ... Public Enemy is the perfect ECW-type tag team, but we have the feeling they can succeed at a higher level ... Look how well The Nasty Boys have done ... Perhaps Public Enemy can move to WCW ... Imagine a Nastys-PE series! ... Would be a perfect bout for WCW Uncensored ... If WCW Uncensored wasn't really censored, that is ... No, we're not sorry to see that PPV concept die, either ... Were voted the team most likely to crack their heads open on a refrigerator door ... Reportedly being wooed by both WCW and the WWF ... Lost a title match against WWF World tag champs, The Smokin' Gunns, at Survivor Series in a

when he signed with the WCW, and then Razor Ramon when he jumped to the WWF ... Isn't it strange that a man named Razor never comes to the ring dean-shaven? ... Gained a killer instinct he never had before, but kept falling short of winning major titles ... Won the I-C belt in 1993 when Shawn Michaels was stripped of the title and later defeated Michaels in the best match of his life, a ladder match at WrestleMania X ... Lost the belt to Diesel and got it back again at SummerSlam '94 ... Lost to Michaels in another classic ladder match at SummerSlam '95 ... A ladder provides the perfect symbolism for Ramon's career: It keeps going up and down ... His goal of winning the WWF World title seems unrealistic right now ... Then again, any idea of a selfproclaimed "Bad Guy" being a good guy seemed unrealistic, too ... Isn't the trusting sort ... Favorite move is the "Razor's edge" power bomb ... Great move, but it wouldn't be a bad idea for him to learn a few more ... Perhaps the smartest thing Ramon does is not wrestle with the toothpick in his mouth. Ouch! ... Same chart probably has Bobby Eaton on it ... Would be better off if he just shut up and wrestled ... One of the finest scientific wrestlers in the world, and if you don't believe it, he'll try to convince you ...

Career took a turn for the worst at Fall Brawl '94 when he lost the TV title to Johnny B. Badd ... According to our sources in England, several pubs in Blackpool immediately removed autographed pictures of Regal from their walls ... Once battled Davey Boy Smith in WCW in a fever-pitched battle of Britain ... Has found his best stride since he began teaming with Earl Robert Eaton ... Team is known as The Blue Bloods Looks to us like The Blue Bloods will eventually win the WCW World tag team title and dominate the federation for some time ... It's a matter of common sense: The top teams in the federation are brawlers; only a scientific team can neutralize them ... Regal's science and Eaton's ability and experience make a very formidable combination ... The key to The Blue Bloods is not getting too impatient ... That's unlikely to happen, considering that Regal was the man patient enough to trace his family history back nearly 1,000 years ... Sort of.

adored in Japan, where he once held the IWGP junior heavyweight title and was a top draw for Frontier Martial Arts ... Said one Japanese writer: "He is the greatest thing since tempura" ... Only not quite as

So far, WCW commentator Steve Mc-Michael has been unable to come up with the words to describe any of Sabu's moves ... (Or, frankly, both of Hulk Hogan's moves) ... Although many of Sabu's original fans are screaming that he "sold out" by signing with WCW, we think they doth protest too much ... Sabu realizes he has to take advantage of every opportunity while he is still in one piece ... Sabu's best U.S. challenge is in WCW, where Sabu can test himself against the best wrestlers in the world ... There is no doubt he belongs among them ... misfortune and dismay, Bearer hasn't done a great job protecting the um, and Undertaker has gone through some tough times ... When the urn's around, Undertaker is unbeatable ... Has dominated his feud with Kama and seems ready to move on to better things ... Problem is, every time Undertaker hits hard times, he disappears for a few months ... Tombstone piledriver is a thunderous and dangerous weapon that he uses in almost every match ... Okay, we'll say it: It's a killer move ... Sorry about that ... Absolutely despises Ted DiBiase. so much so that he has allowed him to become an unhealthy distraction ... Ever since DiBiase introduced an impostor Undertaker two years ago, Undertaker has been consumed by the passion for revenge ... What the world and the WWF-really wants is the ultimate battle of the big men between Undertaker and Diesel ... Having once beaten Hulk Hogan for the WWF title. there's no doubt Undertaker has what it takes to be on top again ... (Can you really believe that this guy is a former WWF World heavyweight champion? Yeah, sounds odd to us, too!) ... Problem is, he's more concerned with death after life.

BIG VAN VADER

he three-time former WCW World champion has fallen out of the picture after getting humbled by Hulk Hogan on several occasions ... Things were looking dismal from the start last January, when Hogan arose from Vader's power bomb ... That basically neutralized Vader and turned him into just another 6'5", 450-pound monster with a killer instinct the size of the Rocky Mountains ... Speaking of the Rockies, Vader is from Denver, Colorado ... The fact is, even though Vader can't beat Hogan, he doesn't lose to anyone else ... Okay, maybe Ric Flair ... Forget the Paul Orndorff locker room incident ... It was a fluke ... The only thing Vader cares about is the WCW World title ... Regrets having failed to send Ric Flair into retirement ... The bottom line on Vader is that he's wrestled both Hogan and Flair, the top two wrestlers of the past two decades, and lost to both of them ... On second thought, maybe Vader's not as tough as we thought ... Tell that to Cactus Jack, Sting, and Ron Simmons, all of whom suffered serious injuries at the hands of Vader ... Is so intent on winning a world title that it's only a matter of time until he returns to the Top 10 and makes a major run ... Anybody who gets in Vader's way is asking for trouble ... His power bomb is a crippling weapon ... Disappeared from WCW shortly prior to Fall Brawl '95 and dropped out of War Games after the Orndorff brawl ... Will be back, somewhere ... The best bet for Vader is a move to the WWF, or a return to Japan, where he's much respected ... Vader vs. Diesel would be a dassic—and a very winnable match for Vader.

SAVIO VEGA

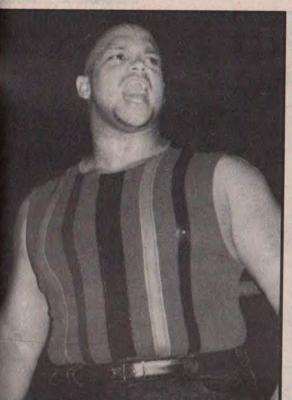

Razor Ramon's buddy came to the rescue of the "Bad Guy" at In Your House I, saving him from an attack by Jeff Jarrett and The Roadie ... At the time, it looked like Vega would be Ramon's sidekick, but he has gone on to be much more ... Reached the finals of the King of the Ring tournament, where he suffered a tough loss to Mabel ... Formerly known as TNT ... Wrestled extensively in Puerto Rico ... One could say his career imploded until he came to the WWF, where it has exploded ... The bad news is that he was absent from two of three pay-per-views ... The other bad news is that his opponent at

In Your House III was Waylon Mercy ... The WWF isn't matching him against top-quality opponents ... Dazzles opponents with an array of karate kicks and other martial arts moves ... The big question Vega must answer is whether or not he was a one-shot wonder who caught a lot of wrestlers by surprise, but doesn't have enough to beat them on the second goround. Kind of like a pitcher who breezes through the order the first time, then gets rocked the second time ... Vega's relationship with Ramon won't get him much further, especially now that it looks like Ramon is going the rulebreaker route ... Needs something to push him up and over the top ... No, we don't know what that might be, either ... King of the Ring remains a respectable goal for Vega, but not the World or I-C titles ... Should start looking for the right tag team partner immediately ... Is Vega the next Pedro Morales or another Manuel Soto? ... We'll know the answer by SummerSlam '96.

SID VICIOUS

here and bore you with the usual garbage about how Sid Vicious, formerly known as Sid Justice, has not done the most with his talents ... Maybe it is our fault for thinking every man who is built like Hulk Hogan will succeed like Hulk Hogan ... Known as Psycho Sid because he looks like he's crazy and has a really bad temper ... Just ask Am Anderson ... Or maybe he's psycho because every time he seems to be on the verge of superstandom, he simply disappears from the sport ... Feuded with Diesel after Diesel saved Shawn Michaels from an attack by Vicious one day after WrestleMania XI ... Michaels had told Vicious to take a day off ... Vicious, not knowing the value of personal days, took exception ... Made the right choice and feuded with Diesel. the World champion, rather than Michaels ... It was one of the few good moves of his career, although it didn't get him very far ... Couldn't unseat Diesel and once again failed to win the World title ... Also failed to win the WCW World title ... Held the USWA title in 1994-95, thanks to outside interference ... Has trouble with wrestlers he cannot physically intimidate Possesses a devastating power bomb that, if ever applied at just the right moment, will make people stop calling him an underachiever ... Vicious needs to stay in the WWF and continue making runs at the World title ... He will always get his chances, whether they are earned or not .. Should take solace in the fact that many of the things that have been said about him were also said about Diesel and Razor Ramon.

V.K. WALL STREET

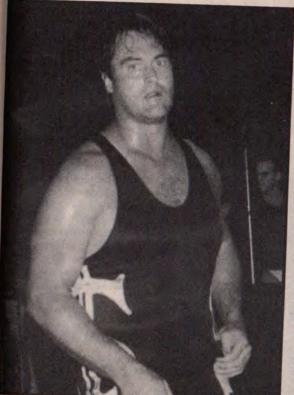

ormerly known as Mike
Rotundo, then Michael Wall Street, then Irwin R. Schyster ...
V.K. is an obvious (and childish) reference to Vincent K. McMahon ...

ledge, has never stepped foot in downtown Manhattan ... This is his second visit to WCW ... Back problems have slowed Wall Street and lessened his effectiveness on combination maneuvers ... While career was believed to be in jeopardy at one point, lighter WCW schedule seems to have helped a great deal ... Doesn't figure to make a major mark in crowded WCW ... Never won a WWF singles title ... Is a man of whom every wrestler moving up the ladder of contention should be wary ... Has a great deal of pride and will never allow anyone to get away with considering him a steppingstone ... Now here's a Horseman candidate ... Great skills, long on experience ... Naaaaaah ... Did some of his best wrestling last year when Ted DiBiase briefly left the WWF, leading us to believe that he won't suffer from DiBiase's absence in WCW ... This might be a good time for Wall Street to forget about the financial gimmicks and go back to what he does best: wrestle ... He's a former amateur standout at Syracuse University who obviously was afraid of being too boring to become successful ... In WCW, Wall Street can get away with simply wrestling.

ALEX WRIGHT

... Enraged, amused, and entertained fans by dancing before and after his matches ... Thankfully, he's given up the Dance Fever routine ... Unfortunately, it was passed on to Disco Inferno ... Battled Ric Flair to the distance last spring ...

Flair called Wright "a future superstar" ... Can get there, but needs to monitor his career carefully ... Has battled Sabu in a series of thrilling matches ... Was pinned by Sabu on WWF Monday Nitro, then was declared a DQ winner after Sabu dove onto Wright and drove him through a wooden press table ... Wright knows there's no shame in losing to Sabu, but there's also no chance of him achieving his dream of reaching the top of the sport if he can't beat Sabu ... Figures to become a much better wrestler when he learns to pick his spots ... Although Wright has proven that he's capable of going head to head with anyone, he hasn't shown an ability to defeat the top stars ... Needs to put on a few pounds ... Bratwurst and Beck's Oktoberfest should do the trick ... The young Wright is in danger of getting lost in the WCW shuffle and might consider a move to an independent feder ation, where he can win a major title, hone his skills, and prepare for another run in WCW.

wo-time former WWF World champion executed the flop heard 'round the world when he accidentally sat on teammate Owen Hart ... Reportedly exists on a diet of sushi and iceberg lettuce ... Right ... think ... Famed "banzai drop" has forced several opponents to reconsider their career choice ... You and I can execute a "banzai drop" simply by going to the refrigerator, grabbing a light snack, and then plopping down in our favorite easy chair to watch TV ... When Yokozuna does the same thing and there's a human being beneath him, it becomes a potent finishing maneuver ... Is scared to death of death; fared terribly in casket matches against Undertaker ... Jim Cornette and Mr. Fuji cruelly made him wrestle in these matches ... Should have told them, "You go wrestle casket" ... Has been overlooked for title shots, even though he's just as awesome as he was a few years ago ... Absolutely hates Bret Hart, his arch-rival during the title years ... Needs to find somebody else to hate ... Like Diesel, Shawn Michaels, or Davey Boy Smith ... Is living proof that you can't pin a house ... Is so big and bulky that's he's nearly impossible to knock off his feet ... But when it happens, he's in trouble ... Current partnership with Owen Hart is a complete waste of time for Yokozuna ... The team's postmatch meals are a sight to be seen, if not eaten ... Would be smart to consider new management.

FOR PROFESSIONAL WRESTLERS

On the pages that follow, you'll find statistics—height, weight, hometown, year (or specific date) of pro debut, and birthday—for hundreds of professional wrestlers worldwide. This list does not purport to be 100 percent comprehensive in presenting every wrestler there's ever been, but it does strive to be 100 percent accurate with the information it does present. Many birthdays and pro debuts have been double- and triple-checked through cross-references. Even so, errors may have crept into the list, and there is information that may yet be added (such as determining the specific date of a pro debut, not just the year, or month and year). We invite anyone with additions and/or corrections to this list to send your information to: PWI ALMANAC, Box 1148, Ft. Washington, PA 19034. We'll be more than happy to update our list for next year's second edition.

PRO WRESTLING ILLUSTRATED ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS

In this section, you'll find a complete listing of all PWI Achievement Award winners, including three categories that are no longer awarded. We've also provided a comprehensive listing of runners-up (which were first reported in 1976) for all awards.

Award winners were first presented annually in the pages of Pro Wrestling Illustrated effective with our March 1982 issue, and continue to appear in the March edition each year. Prior to that, awards appeared in Sports Review Wrestling (1980 awards in the March 1981 edition), Sports Review Wrestling Annual (1977-79 awards in Spring 1978, '79, and '80 editions), and Victory Sports Series Wrestling Annual and Yearbook editions (1972-76 awards in issues #4, 7, 11, 14, and 18).

PROFESSIONAL WRESTLING YEAR BY

In this section, we provide an overview of some of the more memorable dates in wrestling history. For the most part, you won't find the debut dates of wrestlers in this section (check out page 74 for those), nor the dates of major title changes (check out pages 124-159 for those). What you will find, though, are unusual incidents, events, and other fascinating material related to the development of the sport and the public appearances of the stars over the years. Of course, one of the biggest problems in compiling a section such as this is that accurate records on the sport simply have not been maintained over the years, particularly prior to wrestling's acceptance into mainstream American consciousness in the mid-1980s. To assemble this section, we pored through decades of newspaper clippings, magazine articles, published books, Pro Wrestling Illustrated Weekly newsletters, and much, much more. Undoubtedly, future editions of the PWI ALMANAC will provide many additions to this section. If you have newspaper clippings, magazine articles, or other solid information you feel would be an asset to this year-by-year overview of the sport in next year's PWI ALMANAC, please turn to page 4 for information about where to send it.

1845

May 25: William Muldoon is born in Belfast, New York.

1856

March 16: Duncan Ross, winner of many Police Gazette wrestling titles, in born in Scentii, Turkey.

1873

Wrestling's first masked wrestler enters the ring, in Paris. He is known simply as The Masked Wrestler

February 6: William Muldoon wins the Greco-Roman championship from French champion Christol in two straight falls of 10 and 17 minutes. He also wins about $2,000 in side bets.

1878

April 27: Frank Gotch is born on a farm near Humboldt, Iowa. July 20: George Hackenschmidt, later nicknamed "The Russian Lion," is born in Dorpat, Russia; his mother is Swedish, his father is German.

1880

January 19: William Muldoon defeats Thebaud Bauer at Gilmore's Gardens (later site of Madison Square Garden) in a best-of-three-falls match to emerge with the Greco-Roman championship. The bout draws more than 3,000 fans.

1887

Wrestler William Muldoon faces off against boxer John L. Sullivan before a crowd of about 2,000 in a baseball park in Gloucester, Massachusetts. According to boxing and wrestling historian Nat Fleischer, Muldoon slammed Sullivan, and "the crowd rushed in and stopped the combat."

P.T. Barnum-managed grappler Ed Decker, a relative lightweight at 5'6" and 150 pounds, wins the Police Gazette wrestling belt in collar and elbow style.

April 5: Joe Stecher is born in Dodge, Nebraska. September: George Hackenschmidt makes his wrestling debut.

1897

January 2: Jim Londos is born Chris Theophelos in Argos, Greece. The youngest of 13 children, Londos' father was a Greek amateur champion.

1899

April 2: Frank Gotch makes his pro debut, defeating Marshall Green in Humboldt, lowa.

1901

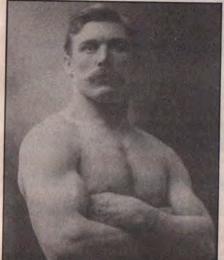

The first tag team matches are held in the United States, in San Francisco.

1903

February 22: "Champion Of America" Tom Jenkins defeats Frank Gotch in Cleveland, Ohio. The match goes two straight falls and lasts approximately 1 hour 45 minutes.

1904

The first National Wrestling Alliance, a casual organization comprised of many regional promoters, is formed.

TOM JENKINS

1905

December 27: Frank Gotch defeats Emil Maupas in the final of a 50man tournament in Montreal to win the Greco-Roman Championship of Canada; the match went two straight falls, 61 and 22 minutes.

1906

May 23: Frank Gotch defeats "Champion Of America" Tom Jenkins in two straight falls, 14 and 17 minutes.

1908

April 3: Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt wrestle each other for the first time ever, at Chicago's Dexter Park Pavilion; promoter W.W. Wittig prices the highest ticket at $40 a seat.

1909

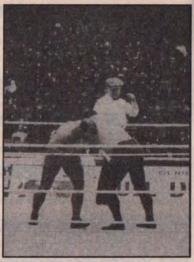

April 14: Frank Gotch, in his first big U.S. match following a U.K. tour, defeats Bulgarian wrestler Yussiff Mahmout in two straight falls (8:00, 9:10) at Chicago's Dexter Park Pavilion.

1910

June 1: In what many termed his crowning achievement, World champion Frank Gotch defeats Stanislaus Zbyszko in the first fall of a Chicago contest in 6.4 seconds! The second fall, also won by Gotch, went 27:33; Zbyszko, at the time, was in his prime, and it is his first loss in 945 matches.

191

September 4: Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt wrestle each other at White Sox Ball Park in Chicago. The live gate of $87,053 (tickets range from $1 to $10) is the biggest ever at the time. Gotch wins in straight falls.

October 2: Legendary Texas promoter Paul Boesch is born in Brooklyn, New York.

1913

Frank Gotch announces his retirement.

Earl Caddock wins championships in three amateur classes at the Panama-Pacific Exhibition Olympiad: middleweight, light heavy, and heavyweight.

1915

Gorgeous George is born George Wagner in Nebraska.

April: Earl Caddock wins the national amateur championship.

1917

1925

Vince McMahon's father, Jess McMahon, promotes the first boxing card in the "old" Madison Square Garden.

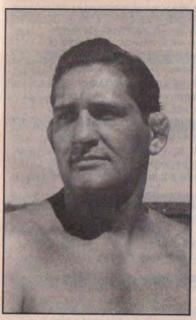

1929

June 7: The Grand Wizard is born Ernie Roth in Canton, Ohio.

1931

June 29: Arguably wrestling's first sleeperhold is applied by Jim Londos against Ray Steele in the main event of a card at New York's Yankee Stadium that drew a crowd estimated at 21,000 fans. The controversial hold helps Londos win victory at the 1:09:12 mark. "Simply a new hold I've perfected which shuts off the jugular vein," Londos said the next day in the New York Sun.

September 15: Boxer Jack Dempsey knocks out wrestler Wild Bill Longson in the first round of a Salt Lake City, Utah, bout in which both men wore gloves.

PAUL BOESCH

1932

October 25: Paul Boesch makes his professional wrestling debut, wrestling and defeating Benny Ginsburg in Staten Island New York

1933

Texas passes state laws legalizing and governing boxing and wrestling. Morris Siegel receives the first license issued in both sports.

1934

Boxer Jack Dempsey faces wrestler Cowboy Luttrall in a bout in Atlanta; Ring magazine publisher Nat Fleischer serves as special referee.

August 3: William D. "Haystacks" Calhoun is born in McKinney, Texas.

September 20: Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Jim Londos meet in Chicago's Wrigley Field, wrestling in front of 35,265 fans and drawing a then-record gate of $96.302.

Jim Crockett Sr. forms Jim Crockett Promotions. Vince McMahon Sr. promotes his first wrestling card.

1936

Warren Bockwinkel, father of Nick Bockwinkel, spots Lou Thesz training in a gym in St. Louis and introduces him to promoters Tom Packs and Sam Muchnick.

A match between Abe Coleman and Man Mountain Dean draws 36,000 fans.

October 2: The first "Texas tornado" tag team match (in which all four men are in the ring at the same time) is held in Houston, the brainchild of promoter Morris Sigel: Milo Steinborn & Whiskers Savage vs. Tiger Daula & Fazul Mohammed.

1938

While excavating a 5,000-year-old temple near Baghdad, American anthropologists unearth a cast bronze figure of two wrestlers, the oldest known reference to the sport. Paul Boesch helps promote the first mud wrestling match.

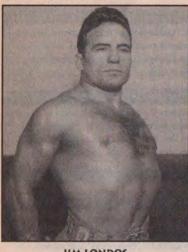

January 23: Shohei "Giant" Baba is born.

1940

July 15: Boxer Jack Dempsey defeats wrestler Bull Curry in 1:05 of the second round of a match in Detroit.

1941

September 21: Jack Brisco is born.

1944

January 21: The City Auditorium in Houston, Texas, hosts one of the most unusual nights of wrestling ever: a joint benefit with wrestlers and the Houston Symphony Orchestra that brought in over a million dollars in war bonds (ringside seats were had for a $500 war bond purchase). Wild Bill Longson battles Lou Thesz in the main event. A match between Ellis Bashara and Dave Levin is accompanied by a symphonic arrangement by the Orchestra; Bashara, after winning the bout, pushes the conductor aside to lead the Orchestra himselft

1946

Jim Londos retires.

May 19: Andre the Giant is born in Grenoble, France.

June 14: Bruiser Brody is born.

Killer Kowalski makes his pro debut.

Former boxer Tony Galento makes his pro debut, defeating "Nature Boy" Buddy Rogers.

A New York match between Buddy Rogers and Billy Darnell is such a wild brawl, a ringside fan dies of a heart attack. Both wrestlers are disqualified from New York competition for two years.

Fred Blassie suffers a head injury that places him on the verge of retirement when he is bounced out of the ring by Rudy Dusek.

Portland, Oregon, promoter Don Owen's cards are first aired on television.

Maurice "Mad Dog" Vachon represents Canada in wrestling in the Olympic games.

July 19: The current version of the National Wrestling Alliance is formed, in Waterloo, lowa. The first NWA president is P.L. "Pinkie" George.

1949

Sky Low Low wins a 30-man tournament in Paris to emerge as midget world champion.

Antonino Rocca arrives in the U.S.

Verne Gagne turns pro.

January: Paul Boesch announces his first televised wrestling match.

February 22: Gorgeous George headlines the first Madison Square Garden wrestling card in 12 years, against Ernie Dusek; George pins Dusek in 26:57 in front of 4,197 fans. The New York press is not impressed by George's theatrics. One New York Times sportswriter writes two days later: "Gorgeous George? Phooey!"

April 20: Primo Carnera's winning streak ends at 321 bouts when he is defeated by Antonino Rocca.

OTHER CROWDS AND CARDS OF NOTE

The Tokyo Dome, most prevalent site on our top 10 list, has been host to many cards drawing crowds of 55-60,000 fans. On April 2, 1995, for example, 13 promotions in Japan got together for a cooperative card that drew about 60,000 fans. Comparable crowds were on hand in the Dome on January 4, 1994 (main event: Genichiro Tenryu pinned Antonio Inoki), January 4, 1992 (main event: Riki Choshu pinned Tatsumi Fujinami), November 29, 1989 (main event: Akira Maeda defeated former Olympic judo medalist Willie Wilhelm via submission), and April 24, 1989 (1972 Olympic judo medalist Shota Chochoshivili defeated Antonio Inoki in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout).

The Fukuoka Dome in Japan has also been the site of some significant crowds, most recently 55,000 fans on May 3, 1993 (main event: Antonio Inoki & Tatsumi Fujinami defeat Riki Choshu & Genichiro Tenryu).

In Mexico, the April 30, 1993, Triple Mania event headlined by a retirement bout that saw Cien Caras defeat Konnan via countout drew about 48,000 fans to Plaza de Toros in Mexico City, Mexico.

In the United States, with the exception of the cards noted in our top 10, some significant attendance figures include: 62,167 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis, Indiana, on April 5, 1992, for WrestleMania VIII ... 43,517 at Texas Stadium in Irving, Texas, on May 6, 1984, to see Kerry Von Erich capture the NWA World title from Ric Flair ... approximately 42,000 at Shea Stadium in New York on June 25, 1976, to see Bruno Sammartino defeat Stan Hansen, Andre the Giant defeat boxer Chuck Wepner, and the closed circuit broadcast from Japan of Muhammad Ali vs. Antonio Inoki ... 40,671 at Shea Stadium in New York on August 9, 1980, to see Bruno Sammartino defeat Larry Zbyszko in a cage match, and Andre the Giant pin Hulk Hogan.

Prior to what many term "the modern era" of pro wrestling, a card at Chicago's Comiskey Park drew 38,622 fans to see Buddy Rogers defeat Pat O'Connor for the NWA World title; the live gate of $141,345 was a record at the time. And on September 20, 1934, 35,265 fans flocked to Wrigley Field in Chicago to see NWA World champion Jim Londos defeanded his title against Ed "Strangler" Lewis.

Finally, there has been a often-reported (but never verified) account of 100,000 flocking to Athens Olympic Stadium in 1934 to see Jim Londos defend his world title against a Russian challenger; reportedly, 30,000 fans were turned away from the event.

HISTORIES

On the pages that follow, you'll find a comprehensive listing of champions for several of the sport's major titles, both current and defunct. The information we've gathered comes from our own computer and text files; reference sources such as several decades worth of newspaper reports and arena programs; and a superlative reference tool, Wrestling Title Histories (Third Edition), edited by Royal Duncan and Gary Will (for information on that volume, contact Royal Duncan, 7600 N. Galena Road, Peoria, Illinois 61615). Please note that in many of the listings, additions have been made and errors have been corrected from previously published versions of the various title histories in Pro Wrestling Illustrated and our sister publications. Future editions of the Almanac will continue to add to and modify these listings to provide the most accurate and comprehensive information available. Listings for currently active championships are updated through December 8, 1995. [Note: Smoky Mountain folded too close to press time to be able to shift listings for those titles from the active to inactive pages.]

FOOTNOTES:

¹Buddy Rogers won a tournament in April 1963 in Rio de Janiero, Brazil, to become the first WWWF champion; he defeated Antonino Rocca in the final.

²The match lasted 48 seconds. Buddy Rogers submitted following several dropkicks, a bearhug, and a backbreaker.

³Bob Backlund, whose back had been injured by The Iron Sheik just days before this bout, was caught in the camel clutch. His manager, Arnold Skaaland, threw in the towel at the 11:50 mark.

4Time of the match: 5:40.

⁵Andre The Giant scored a controversial pinfall when Hulk Hogan lifted his shoulder at the twocount, but referee Earl Hebner (the twin brother of assigned referee Dave Hebner) continued the count. Andre's reign as champion lasted less than two minutes, as he then gave the belt to Ted DiBiase; WWF President Jack Tunney later ruled that transaction invalid, vacated the title, and ordered a tournament held for WrestleMania IV.

⁶This was a tournament final at WrestleMania IV. Time of the match: 9:27.

7WWF President Jack Tunney was at ringside for the bout, but was knocked unconscious by the interfering Ric Flair. Undertaker's manager, Paul Bearer, also interfered by attempting to hit Hulk Hogan with his urn. Hogan ducked, and Bearer hit Undertaker instead. Hogan grabbed the urn, threw ashes in Undertaker's face, then pinned him. The following day, Tunney declared the title vacant, with a new champion to be determined at the January 19, 1992, Royal Rumble.

⁸Ric Flair won the title by winning the 30-man Royal Rumble.

9This was WrestleMania IX. Bret Hart had Yokozuna in the sharpshooter leglock. Mr. Fuji threw salt in Hart's eyes, enabling Yokozuna to make the pin. Hulk Hogan came to the ring, made an impromptu challenge to Yokozuna, and the two wrestled. Fuji tried throwing salt again during the match with Hogan, hit Yokozuna instead, and Hogan scored the title-winning pin in just 25 seconds. Total length of Yokozuna's reign: 2:07.

10Roddy Piper was special referee for the bout. Time of the match: 10:31.

FOOTNOTES:

Pat Patterson won a September 1979 tournament in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to become the first Intercontinental champion.

²This was a tournament final. The Ultimate Warrior was stripped of the title by WWF President Jack Tunney shortly after his WrestleMania VI WWF World title win over Hulk Hogan.

³Razor Ramon and Rick Martel were the last two competitors left in a 20-man battle royal to determine the top contenders to the title. Shawn Michaels was stripped of the title by WWF President Jack Tunney, who read a statement prior to the battle royal claiming the action was due to Michaels having failed "to meet certain contractual obligations."

4The title had been held up earlier in the evening as the result of a controversial match between Jeff Jarrett and Bob Holly. This rematch filled the title vacancy.

⁵This was a ladder match.

6Shawn Michaels was forced to forfeit the title to Dean Douglas at this In Your house pay-per-view due to an injury that occurred a week earlier.

WWF WORLD TAG TEAM TITLE

(NOTE: The World Wrestling Federation was formed in 1963; the WWF tag team title was known as the United States tag team title until 1967, when the title became vacant because Bruno Sammartino (whose tag team championship partner at the time was Spiros Arion) was unable to defend both the U.S. tag team title and the WWF heavyweight title. From 1969 through 1971, the title was known as the WWWF International tag team title. In late-1971, the championship became known as the WWWF World tag team title.)

FOOTNOTES:

Antonino Rocca and Miguel Perez were the first U.S. tag team titlists.

²Buddy Rogers had left Johnny Valentine and the title; Valentine chose Chief Big Heart as his partner.

³Antonio Pugliese left the United States in June 1967; Spiros Arion chose Arnold Skaaland as his championship partner.

4Professor Tanaka and Mitsu Arakawa had won the belts in June 1969 in a tournament in Japan.

5The Mongols left the WWF in early-1971, bringing the International tag team belts with them.

- This is a tournament final. On November 12, 1971, "Crazy" Luke Graham & Tarzan Tyler defeated The Mongols, thus quieting any disputes that the Mongols remained uncrowned champions.
- 7In June 1975, Victor Rivera announced he was giving up his half of the title; Dominic DeNucci was allowed to choose a new partner, and chose "Irish" Pat Barrett.
- The Executioners were stripped of the title as the result of a match against Chief Jay Strongbow & Billy White Wolf that was televised on October 26, 1976, during which a third masked Exe-
- cutioner interfered.

 9Chief Jay Strongbow & Billy White Wolf won a three-team tournament, defeating The Executioners and Tor Kamata & Nikolai Volkoff.
- 10This was a tournament final. Shortly after Chief Jay Strongbow & Billy White Wolf won the belts, Billy White Wolf suffered an injured neck during a match against Ken Patera; he and Strongbow gave up the belts.
- 11 Bob Backlund & Pedro Morales won the title in two straight falls of a best-of-three-falls bout in this Shea Stadium contest. Backlund and Morales gave the belts back to the WWF shortly after the win, since Backlund was WWF World heavyweight champion at the time. The title was declared vacant and an elimination tournament ordered.
- 12This was the final round of an elimination tournament.
- ¹³This was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant when Diesel and Shawn Michaels split up at The Survivor Series, on November 23, 1994.
- 14Earlier in the day on September 25, WWF President Gorilla Monsoon stripped Diesel and Shawn Michaels of the title and returned the belts to Owen Hart and Yokozuna.

NWA HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

(NOTE: There are several key points to remember in viewing this list of NWA champions: (1) With the help of additional sources examined for this almanac, this listing contains many modifications, additions, and corrections from previous versions of the NWA title lineage printed in Pro Wrestling Illustrated or our sister publications. (2) The NWA that most fans know of today, the National Wrestling Alliance, was actually formed in 1948; a second NWA, the National Wrestling Association, came into being in 1929. (3) At various times throughout this century, the lineage of the title has been broken, most recently prior to Chris Candido's winning of the belt; special attention should be paid to the late-'20s and early-'30s, during which time the world title splintered into several factions and lineage remains fuzzy at best. As a result we've done our best to highlight major breaks from the main line, and reconnect the lineage where appropriate. For the best complete overview of the title history at the time, refer to Duncan & Will, Third Edition.)

FOOTNOTES:

During the first few years of the century, George Hackenschmidt had won world championship tournaments in Italy, Germany, and England. As a result of this match, by defeating American champion Tom Jenkins in two straight falls, he became recognized as top champion in North America. ²George Hackenschmidt left the ring, refusing to return, and the referee awarded the title to Gotch, who retired in 1913; his last match was a victory over George Lurich on April 9.

- ³Charlie Cutler had defeated Henry Ordeman and Jesse Westegard in a tournament, and had laid claim to the world title.
- ⁴Earl Caddock was awarded the title by the referee when Joe Stecher refused to return to the ring after the second fall.
- ⁵As a result of this match, Dick Shikat became recognized as the first champion of the National Wrestling Association (NWA), a division of the National Boxing Association.
- ⁶Henry DeGlane won the title by disqualification.
- 7This match on Long Island, New York, was billed as a world championship match, and was designed to halt the controversy that was splitting the sport at the time. Jim Londos was subsequently stripped of his title for refusing to meet the winner of this bout. Ed "Strangler" Lewis later affirmed his claim on the title with an October 10, 1932, victory over Jack Sherry.
- ⁸Ed Don George had been claiming rights to the world title ever since he defeated Henry DeGlane in Boston in 1933. Danno O'Mahony, because of his victories over Jim Londos, Ed Don George, and Ed "Strangler" Lewis, became the closest thing to undisputed world champion at the time, representing a unification of sorts of the splintering of the world title that had taken place for several years.
- During his title reign, Ali Baba was disqualified in a match against Dave Lewin held in Newark, New Jersey. The State Athletic Commission reversed the match decision and allowed Ali Baba to keep the title. Soon thereafter, however, a rule change was made which stated that the title cannot change hands on a disqualification.
- 10The NWA decided to recognize Everett Marshall as champion because Steve Crusher Casey was out of the country and failed to defend the title on a regular basis.
- 11The National Wrestling Alliance was organized in July 1948. At that particular time, Orville Brown was recognized as champion. Forced to retire due to injuries received in a November 11, 1949, auto accident, Brown relinquished his claim on the title. Lou Thesz was scheduled to meet Brown in a title match in St. Louis on November 25, 1949.
- 12Special referee for the match: Jack Dempsey.
- 13Time of the match: 27:22.
 14Time of the match: 19:51.
 15Time of the match: 16:55.
 16Time of the match: 23:43.
- 17Two out of three falls match. Harley Race won the first fall by suplex at the 11:10 mark. Ric Flair won the second fall by submission to the figure-four at the 10:23 mark. The third fall lasted to 6:17; both men had their shoulders on the mat as the result of a backdrop, but Race lifted his shoulder up at the 21/2 mark. Special referee for the match: Gene Kiniski.
- 18Time of the match: 33:29. This was the first time the title changed hands inside a steel cage.
- 19Outdoor show at Texas Stadium. Kerry Von Erich won the title with a backslide at the 25:42 mark
- ²⁰This was a best-of-three falls match. Kerry Von Erich won the first fall in 15:21 with the clawhold; Ric Flair won the second fall in 3:24 with the figure-four; Flair won the third fall in 7:19 by rolling over a rollover.

21This was a cage match. Time of the match: 22:35.
22This was a cage match. Time of the match: 39:28.

23This was a cage match. Time of the match: 17:39.

²⁴Time of the match: 23:06. ²⁵Time of the match: 16:06.

26Time of the match: 20:38. Ric Flair is (according to WCW officials in April 1992) the first WCW World champion; Sting, therefore, as of April 1992, is a one-time NWA and one-time WCW World champion. In September 1991, Flair signed with the WWF and the NWA title was declared vacant.

27This is a tournament final.

²⁸This was SuperBrawl III. Time of the match: 24:08

29The title was declared vacant in September 1993 when WCW withdrew from the NWA. It was renamed the WCW International title, held in the year that followed by Rick Rude, Hiroshi Hase, Rude again, Sting, then Flair again, but was finally abandoned when it was unified with the WCW World title at Clash Of The Champions XXVII on June 23, 1994.

30This is a tournament final.

31Dan Severn captured the Ultimate Fight V championship on April 8, 1995, and the UFC Ultimate Ultimate championship on December 16, 1995.

FOOTNOTES:

¹According to World Championship Wrestling, Ric Flair—who had been known worldwide as the NWA World champion—was acknowledged as the first WCW World champion during this reign.

²Ric Flair had been stripped of the WCW World title on July 1 after he could not come to a contractual agreement with WCW. Lex Luger and Barry Windham were determined to be the top contenders to the title.

³Randy Savage won the title in a 60-man battle royal at the World War III pay-per-view event. Hulk Hogan lost the title to The Giant on October 29 at Halloween Havoc due to a clause in the contract placed by Jimmy Hart that the belt could change hands on a disqualification; since the disqualification was due to Hart's interference, the title was declared vacant and put up for grabs in the World War III battle royal.

FOOTNOTES:

In December 1981, the Andersons were stripped of the title for being unable to defend the belts due to an October 1981 injury to Gene Anderson.

²This was a tournament final.

³This was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant when Rick Steamboat announced his retirement on December 25, 1983.

4Though Ivan & Nikita Koloff won the belts, any pair of the trio of Ivan & Nikita Koloff and Krusher Khrushchev were allowed to defend the title.

⁵This was a tournament final. Mike Rotundo & Steve Williams were stripped of the title after their May 7, 1989, defense against The Road Warriors, where Dan Spivey and Kevin Sullivan interfere on their behalf by attacking guest referee Nikita Koloff.

⁶The Steiners are regarded as the last NWA World tag team champions and the first WCW World tag team champions. A tag team tournament to fill the vacancy was held July 12, 1992, at the Great American Bash. The tourney was won by Terry Gordy & Steve Williams. Co-recognition of the champions as NWA/WCW World tag team champions continued through September 1, 1993, when WCW withdrew from the NWA, and the NWA in turn withdrew recognition of the champions, at the time Arn Anderson and Paul Roma, who then became known strictly as WCW World tag team champions.

⁷ This was a tournament final. Rick & Scott Steiner were stripped of the title in late-July 1991 when Scott was forced out of action with a torn left bicep muscle.

8Lord Steven Regal was allowed to substitute for the injured Brian Pillman.

NWA/WCW U.S. HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

(NOTE: While this particular version of the U.S. title was evidently initiated in 1975, our most reliable lineage information stretches back only to April 19, 1980.)

FOOTNOTES:

1Wahoo McDaniel was stripped of the title in September 1981 after being injured by Abdullah the Butcher. A tournament was ordered to fill the title vacancy.

²This match was a tournament final.

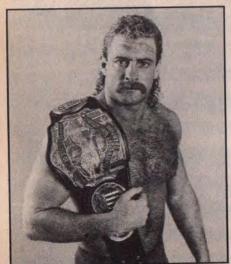

³Sgt. Slaughter was awarded the title when Wahoo McDaniel was unable to show up for a title match as the result of having sustained an injured left leg at the hands of Magnificent Muraco and Roddy Piper.

4Greg Valentine was awarded the title when the match was halted due to a bloody gash over Roddy Piper's left ear that rendered him unable to continue.

⁵The title was held up and vacated after this bout due to the interference of Tully Blanchard, who hit Rick Steamboat in the head with a chair.

⁶This match was a tournament final

MAGNUM, T.A.

7This match was the final bout in a best-ofseven series to fill the vacancy created in May 1986 when Magnum T.A. was stripped of the title for attacking NWA President Bob Geigel. 8This match was a tournament final. Dustyhodes had been stripped of the title in April 1988 for hitting NWA President Jim Crockett with a baseball bat.

⁹This match was a tournament final. The titlehad been declared vacant when Lex Lugerwon the WCW World title on July 14, 1991.

10This match had been intended as a bout to determine the number-one contender to Rick Rude's title. When Rude was stripped of the belt in December 1992 for failing to defend it (he was injured), the bout instead became a contest to determine a new champion.

11This match was to fill the title vacancy. The title had been declared vacant in May 1993 as the result of a controversial double-pin situation between Dustin Rhodes and Rick Rude.

¹²Steve Austin had been awarded the title earlier in the evening via forfeit when Steamboat, his original opponent for the night, was unable to wrestle due to a back injury.

¹³Big Van Vader is stripped of the title in early-April 1995 for multiple violent offenses, particularly an assault on Dave Sullivan on March 7.

FOOTNOTES:

This was the final round of a tournament to determine the NWA television champion. Dick Slater's U.S. title, of course, was not on the line in this match. Also note that in a semifinal encounter vs. Assassin #2, Mark Youngblood put feet up on middle ropes to gain pinfall.

²This was a tournament final. The title was declared vacant when Dusty Rhodes was unable to defend the belt due to an injury.

3This was a "first blood" match at Starrcade '86.

⁴The belt had been held up since 7-23-89 when Sting pinned The Great Muta, but tapes later showed that Muta's shoulders were off the mat.

⁵This was a best-of-three-falls match.

6This was Clash Of The Champions XX. It was also a no-DQ match with Paul E. Dangerously locked in a cage suspended above the ring. Rick Steamboat won with a flying bodypress off the top rope.

⁷This was the final round of a tournament to determine a new champion. Scott Steiner was stripped of the title when he went to the WWF in November 1992.

1 This was the main event of the SuperClash II pay-per-view. The match was stopped due to Kerry Von Erich bleeding too heavily. Jerry Lawler, who held the AWA World title at the time, unified that title with Von Erich's World Class heavyweight title; the unified championship became known as the USWA heavyweight title.

2This was the final bout in a 21-man tournament. The Snowman had been stripped of the title on August 27 after he was injured and could not defend the belt within the required 30-day period.

³This was a Survivor Series final, an eight-man match that saw Jerry Lawler pin Tatanka in a bout pitting Lawler, Jeff Jarrett, & The Moondogs against Tatanka, Tommy Rich, & The Dog Catchers.

⁴This was a battle royal to fill the title vacancy created when Randy Savage left the USWA just a few days earlier.

⁵Jerry Lawler forfeited the title because he was injured by Sid Vicious earlier on the card and could not appear for the scheduled match.

146 Wrestling Almanac 1996

1 This was a tournament final to determine the first Southern champion.

²The title had been declared vacant in July 1990. USWA officials declared Dick Slater holder of the reinstated championship in late-September.

3This was a tournament final. The title was declared vacant when Eddie Gilbert left the USWA approximately a month earlier.

4This was a tournament final. The title was held up following a February 25 bout in Memphis in which Steve Austin beat Jeff Jarrett with his foot on the ropes.

⁵This was to declare a champion in the wake of the title having been held up after a Tommy Rich-Jeff Jarrett bout on September 25, 1993.

⁶This was a tournament final to fill a title vacancy. Doug Gilbert had been stripped of the title two weeks earlier for failing to make the required number of title defenses.

7The title had been held up following an April 10 match between Brian Lee and Brian Christopher.

1 Jeff Jarnett & Matt Borne are reagnized as the first USWA tag team champions; the title was previously known as the World Class tag team title, but an August 18, 1989, victory by Eric Embry over P.Y. Chu-Hi for the heavyweight title ended months of legal wrangling and officially changed the name of World Class to the USWA.

2This was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant when Matt Borne lost a loser-leaves-town match.

3 Steve Doll was unable to make it to the arena for the title defense, so Rex King defended the title in a handi-4Chuck Casey was substituting for Don Harris.

This was a tournament final. The Moondags were stripped of the title due to Spike being injured.

⁶Brian Christopher was forced to defend the title alone, having been abandoned by Jeff Jarrett before the match. 7This was a match to award the title that had been held up on January 3, 1994, following a controversial hospital elimination match between Far Two Wild and PG-13.

⁸This was a tournament final. The title had been vacated on April 16, 1994, following a controversial bout between The Moondags and Billy Travis & Don Bass.

9The title had been held up on August 15, 1994, after champions PG-13 and Dante & The Great Mephisto battle to a simultaneous double-pin. Dante & Mephisto won the immediate rematch.

10This was a tournament final. The title had been held up following a controversial match between The Heavenly Bodies and PG-13 on August 21, 1995, in Memphis, Tennessee.

FOOTNOTES:

1This was a tournament final.

²This was a tournament final; the title had been declared vacant earlier in 1987 when Tatsumi

Fujinami and Kengo Kimura split up their team.

3IWGP officials declared the title vacant when Scott Steiner failed to appear for a scheduled title defense. Rick Steiner was allowed to choose a partner and wrestle Hiroshi Hase & The Great Muta for the vacant title.

4This match was held to fill the title vacancy created when Hiroshi Hase & The Great Muta stepped down from the championship shortly after Muta won the IWGP heavyweight title on May 3, 1995.

5The title was declared vacant a few days prior to this bout when it was determined that Masa Chono & Hiroyoshi Tenzan couldn't defend the championship on this date due to personal reasons (Chono's father passed away).

FOOTNOTES:

¹August 1960 saw the formation of the American Wrestling Association. Title recognition was given to Verne Gagne who, at the time, was generally recognized as the uncrowned champion in wrestling.

²It was later discovered that Mr. M was Dr. Bill Miller.

³Verne Gagne held the title until his retirement on May 10, 1981.

4Nick Bockwinkel was awarded the title due to Verne Gagne's retirement, his No. 1 ranking at the time, and his status as former champion.

5Nick Bockwinkel was scheduled to challenge Stan Hansen for the belt. Hansen left the arena, and it was determined by AWA President Stanley Blackburn that if he did not return by the end of the last match on the card, the title would be awarded to Bockwinkel by default. It was.

⁶The title was officially awarded to Curt Hennig on 05-13-87 when, by a 4-2 vote, an AWA review board determined through videotape replay that there was no evidence Larry Zbyszko illegally aided Hennig.

7This was a battle royal victory; Larry Zbyszko last eliminated Tom Zenk to win the title. Jerry Lawler had been stripped of the title by AWA President Stanley Blackburn for missing seven mandatory title defenses in AWA territories.

⁸Larry Zbyszko was stripped of the title on 12-12-90 when he left the AWA for WCW. Shortly thereafter, the AWA folded.

Dory Funk Jr. was awarded the title via firfeit when Barry Windham, injured in an auto accident, was unable to defend the title.

²This match was the last round of a title tournament. Bruiser Brody had been stripped of the title when an August 24, 1982, match between Brody and Brian Blair reached an irresponsible level of brutality.

3This was a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant when Mike Graham was injured and unable to defend the title for 30 days.

4This is a tournament final. Barry Windham had been stripped of the title when he left Florida to compete in Japan.

5This is a tournament final. The title had been declared vacant several weeks earlier when Hercules Hernandez left Florida to compete in the WWF.

6This match was to determine the champion after the title had been held up following a match in which Ron Bass used chloroform against Barry Windham.

⁷Mike Rotundo gave the title belt to Rick Steiner in December 1988. He was subsequently stripped of the title, and the championship was abandoned later that month.

FOOTNOTES:

This is a tournament final.

²Paul Orndorff relinquished the championship belt on television in Atlanta on July 31, 1982. He claimed defending the belt took too much time away from preparations for NWA World title matches with Ric Flair.

³This was the final round of a round-robin tournament.

⁴Killer Brooks defeated Paul Orndorff in the scheduled title match. Larry Zbyszko bought the title from Brooks for $25,000. Zbyszko was subsequently stripped of the title, on April 30, 1983. A tournament was ordered to determine the new champion.

⁵This is the final round of a title tournament; see note 4, above.

6Brad Armstrong masqueraded as Mr. R and was unmasked by Ted DiBiase, who thought it would be Tommy Rich under the mask. While Rich waved at DiBiase from Gordon Solie's broadcast podium, a shocked DiBiase became the victim of Armstrong's pin.

7Wahoo McDaniel was defeated by Nikita Koloff in a match to unify the National and U.S. titles, on September 28, 1986 in Atlanta. See U.S. title chart (page 137) for more information.

FOOTNOTES:

¹Mike George is the first Mid-South North American heavyweight champion, having defeated Mr. Wrestling II on February 16, 1979, for the title that was previously known as simply the North American title and renamed in August 1979.

²This was atournament final. The title had been declared vacant in February 1983.

³This title was abandoned in May 1986 when Bill Watts' Mid-South region was renamed the UWF. Terry Gordy won the first UWF title in a May 30, 1986 tournament in Houston, Texas; One Man Gang won the title from Gordy via forfeit on November 9, 1986; Big Bubba Rogers won the title on April 19, 1987; Steve Williams won the title on July 11, 1987; the title was finally abandoned in December 1987 when the UWF became part of the NWA.

FOOTNOTES:

¹This was the final of a tournament that had begun on March 18, 1972.

²This match was to fill the title vacancy created on December 6, 1972, when a match between champion Harley Race and challenger Johnny Valentine ended in double-disqualification.

³This was a tournament final. The title had been vacated following Harley Race's defeat of Ric Flair for the NWA World title.

⁴This title was abandoned roughly six months after Harley Race's victory.

WRESTLING ON PAY-PER-VIEW

COMPLETE RESULTS

In this section, you'll find complete results of every pay-per-view card in wrestling history, through WCW's World War III on November 26, 1995. In many cases, you'll also find results of matches not aired on the pay-per-view broadcasts! Unlike the chart on page 160, which lists all pay-perviews chronologically, we have broken down these results into three sections: WWF results, NWA/WCW results, and results from other pay-per-view events.

This pay-per-view card was an edited version of two nights of wrestling that took place April 28 and 29, 1995.

Many fans in the United States only know about wrestling in the United States. This feature, exclusive to the 1996 PWI ALMANAC, will fill you in on what's happening overseas—and why you should pay attention

VERY BIG!

Wrestling fans who have never traveled abroad would probably be shocked to find out about not only the popularity of wrestling around the world, but the wide variety of styles represented overseas. Since promotions from other countries for the most part don't broadcast their television shows or promote cards in the United States, few American fans realize there's a world of wrestling beyond North American shores.

In fact, there is no country in the world where pro wrestling is more popular than Japan. While the United States now only has two major national promotions (WWF and WCW) and a few independent groups that run regularly, the city of Tokyo alone has more than 30 different wrestling promotions!

There are many differences between what would be termed American-style and Japanese-style wrestling. The type of wrestling and promotion within WWF and WCW is similar and is known around the world as American style. It's an entertainment-oriented style, aimed primarily at a young audience. SMW and USWA, with more brawling and more stipulation-type matches, is generally known as Southern style. ECW, with more extreme brawling and match stipulations, is actually the most similar to two wrestling companies in Japan, Frontier Martial Arts Wrestling (FMW) and the International Wrestling Alliance (WA).

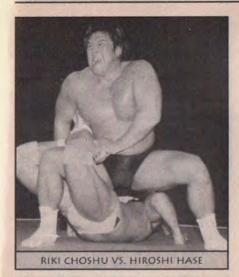

No discussion of wrestling around the world should begin without talking about New Japan Pro Wrestling and All-Japan Pro Wrestling. On the surface, because these are the two largest and most popular companies in Japan, one would make a comparison with WWF and WCW. But there are a lot more differences than similarities between Japan's two biggest company's and WWF and WCW, differences that usually become very noticeable when occasional interpromotional matches take place.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST PROMOTION

lew Japan, which is currently the largest and most popular wrestling promotion in the world, has a working agreement with WCW. That's why you'll often see New Japan wrestlers such as The Great Muta, Jushin Liger, or Kensuke Sasaki on WCW pay-per-view cards and sometimes on television. WCW wrestlers, like Sting and Ric Flair, likewise often appear on major New Japan events. Some recent acquisitions by WCW—Sabu, Dean Malenko, Eddy Guerrero, and Chris Benoit—were all major stars with New Japan, and compete regularly for both promotions. In the past, major New Japan cards such as a few of the Tokyo Dome events and the recent Collision In Korea, have been broadcast by WCW on pay-per-view in the United States.

Guerrero, Benoit, and Malenko typify the style of wrestling in the New Japan promotion. The wrestlers are strong on fundamental skills and conditioning, wrestle a fast-paced style with few stationary holds, and do little in the way of showboating or taunting during their matches. There is a greater emphasis on not only winning and losing, but on putting forth a great effort in the ring, more so than there is on things like interviews or grudge matches. Stipulation matches are rare, and the focus of the promotion remains on winning matches to earn shots at championships.

The Japanese wrestlers that compete in New Japan were usually top-flight amateurs, many of whom represented their country in the Olympics. New Japan's top officials, both of whom still wrestle and are two of its legendary stars—Riki Choshu and Masa Saito—both wrestled in the Olympics.

New Japan's biggest annual events take place at domed baseball stadiums—and often sell out. This past year, New Japan promoted two cards in North Korea; each drew in excess of 150,000 fans, setting all-time records for pro wrestling anywhere in the world. New Japan also set the Japanese record for attendance on October 9, 1995, for an interpromotional showdown with UWFI (Union of Wrestling Force International), a rival Japanese wrestling organization.

Part of the reason for New Japan's popularity is that it has close working ties with several other Japanese promotions, such as UWFI, Heisei Ishingun (HI), Michinoku Pro Wrestling, along with WCW in the United States, AAA in Mexico, and the CWA in Europe. This gives the company access to an incredible amount of talent for major cards and big tournaments.

Probably the most popular and intense matches in Japan are when the top stars of each promotion face off against each other with promotional bragging rights at stake, which brings all the fans from both promotions to the card. The October 9 event at the Tokyo Dome, which saw IWGP champion Keiji Muto (The Great Muta) retain his title by making UWFI champion Nobuhiko Takada submit to a figure-four leglock, drew 67,000 and a gate of $6.5-million. How big is that? By comparison, this card took in four times as much money as the WrestleMania III Hulk Hogan-Andre the Giant match at the Pontiac Silverdome, which drew a record 93,173, but a gate of $1.6-million.

POLITICS AND CHAMPIONSHIP GOLD

New Japan was formed in 1972 and, throughout most of its history, saw Antonio Inoki remain its greatest star. Now a famous politician in Japan, Inoki is considered one of the two biggest names in Japanese wrestling history (the other being Rikidozan). Inoki's popularity in Japan greatly exceeds that of Hulk Hogan or Sting or Bret Hart, as evidenced by him winning a term in Japan's House of Councilors (equivalent to the United States Senate). The thunderous reactions to him for his two or three matches a year at the big events are like nothing ever seen in this country.

In 1995, New Japan sent a second wrestler into the House of Councilors when Hiroshi Hase was elected to office. That probably shows the difference between wrestling in the U.S. and Japan best: In the U.S., when Bob Backlund said he was going to run for President, the idea of a wrestler running for national office was treated as a joke. Meanwhile, two of New Japan's biggest stars were not only taken as serious candidates—but actually won their elec-

New Japan has its own world heavyweight title belt, known as the IWGP title (see title histories section on page 124 for a complete list of champions). The first champion was Hulk Hogan, who beat Inoki in the tournament final to create the title back in 1983. Inoki regained the title one year later. Since that time, only one American wrestler, Big Van Vader (himself a legend in Japan), has been able to win the title. having held it on three occasions. The current champ is Keiji Muto, known in the United States as The Great Muta.

The other major championships are the IWGP tag team titles and the IWGP junior heavyweight title. The tag team titles are currently held by Shinya Hashimoto and Junji Hirata. Only a few Americans have been able to win that title as well. Rick and Scott Steiner. who are two of the most popular Americans in Japan today, have held it on two occasions. Scott Norton, who became New Japan's most popular American singles wrestler when Vader left the promotion, has held the title with both Tony Halme and Hercules. Vader held the title once with Bam Bam Bigelow, and Road Warrior Hawk held the title twice with Kensuke Sasakithe only American-Japanese combo ever to hold the belts.

The IWGP junior heavyweight title, meanwhile, has a story of its own.

SPOTLIGHT ON JUNIOR HEAVYWEIGHTS

s in the United States, heavyweights Ahave traditionally dominated wrestling in Japan. Many of the most popular American wrestlers in Japanese history have been the big men: Stan Hansen, Bruiser Brody, Big Van Vader, The Road Warriors. and Andre the Giant.

In 1981, however, a wrestler came along who changed Japanese wrestling for-Satoru Sayama was a wrestling fan who went on to compete as a kick-boxer and was trained in the New Japan doio. He stood only 5'6" and weighed just 160 pounds. New Japan promoters knew he was a sensational athlete, but there was nowhere on their cards for a man of his size. So he was sent abroad, to England and Mexico, where weight classes are popular. Before long, he not only won the middleweight titles in both places, but became a legend in his own right.

In 1981, New Japan was looking for a way to attract young fans to wrestling. The most popular wrestler in the country amona kids at the time was Mil Mascaras, but he wrestled for All-Japan. The most popular Saturday morning cartoon in Japan at the time was called Tiger Mask, about a young orphan who became a pro wrestler and fought criminals. The creator of the cartoon and New Japan got together and decided to create an actual wrestler called Tiger Mask for the fans.

KOJI KANEMOTO VS. SABU

Tiger Mask wrestled a little over two years for New Japan before he left to become a trainer for martial arts fighters. Many of the moves that have just been discovered by American wrestling fans over years, like fancy bridging suplexes and speedy dives out of the ring, were actually popularized by Tiger Mask in Japan more than a decade ago. While he was created for kids, he soon become the hero of adults as well. In two years, he did the unthinkable, winning both the NWA and WWF junior heavyweight championships—and held both at the same time! During that period, he wrestled almost every night and never lost a match. His legend became unparalleled.

Tiger Mask's successor as Japan's junior heavyweight superstar was Jushin "Thunder" Liger, who has held the IWGP junior heavyweight title a record six times. With Liger missing most of 1995 after breaking his ankle in September 1994, the title bounced back and forth most of the year between Koji Kanemoto and Sabu, with Kanemoto winning it in May at the Fukuoka Dome. But people are now already talking about Shinjiro Otani as the next junior heavyweight superstar.

In 1995, New Japan became the most popular wrestling organization in the world, even though outside of a few matches on WCW television and its videos being in a few select video stores, there is almost no trace of the company in the United States. The New Japan television show is popular in Europe, and its wrestlers have headlined six cards in the past year that drew more than 50,000 fans.

JAPAN'S OTHER BIG PROMOTION

The number-two promotion in Japan is All-Japan Pro Wrestling. All-Japan is unique among Japanese federations in that it doesn't work with any other companies and has a stable of full-time American wrestlers who wrestle virtually only for them. The reason American fans rarely hear about stars like Stan Hansen, Steve Williams, Johnny Ace, Dan Kroffat, Doug Furnas, The Fantastics, The Patriot, Dory Funk Jr., Johnny Smith, and Abdullah the Butcher anymore is because they almost exclusively compete for All-

All-Japan is owned by wrestler Shohei "Giant" Baba, himself a three-time holder of the NWA World heavyweight title when that title was considered one of the world's major championships. In the 1970s, All-Japan gained a great following because all the leading NWA stars would appear on this group's cards. The NWA World and junior heavyweight champions would make frequent trips overseas for All-Japan. When the NWA collapsed in the late-'80s, Baba distanced himself from other wrestling promoters and created his own stable of foreign wrestlers who competed only for him.

The strength of All-Japan lies in its top four Japanese wrestlers, Mitsuharu Misawa, Toshiaki Kawada, Kenta Kobashi, and Akira Taue. On April 2, 1995, Baba broke his isolation rule by cooperating with all the major Japanese companies for a one-night Super Bowl Of Wrestling card at the Tokyo Dome. To the surprise of nobody, the most popular wrestlers on the card all came from All-Japan, with Misawa being the most popular wrestler of them all

CHAMPIONSHIP GOLD

All-Japan's top singles title, currently held by Mitsuharau Misawa, is called the Triple Crown. It was formed in 1989 when Jumbo Tsuruta, who held the now-defunct NWA International title, defeated Stan Hansen, who at the time held both the NWA United National title and the PWF heavyweight title.

Toshiaki Kawada and Akira Taue hold the tag team title, called the Double Title. It was unified in 1988 when Tsuruta and Yoshiaki Yatsu (who held the PWF tag team title) beat The Road Warriors (who held the NWA International tag team belts). All-Japan also has a junior heavyweight champion, Yoshinari Ogawa, who won the title on September 3, 1995, with a shocking upset of longtime champion Dan Kroffat, who had held the belt since July 12, 1994.

All-Japan wrestling has a unique style. All of its matches end either in pinfalls, submissions, or time-limit draws. There is no such thing as a countout or disqualification, as Baba believes those kind of decisions leave fans dissatisfied. Fed up with the direction wrestling was going, with fans paying good money to see the top stars compete and often leaving without seeing clear-cut winners and losers,

TOSHIAKI KAWADA VS. STEVE WILLIAMS

Baba told his referees not to allow bouts to end without clean finishes in the middle of the ring. This caused a lot of wrestlers to not want to compete for All-Japan, as when they are in danger of losing, they can't protect their reputations with self-imposed disqualifications.

All-Japan doesn't have grudge matches, feuds, or special stipulation matches. Baba believes that while they may draw a big crowd, in the long run they hurt the reputation of pro wrestling. All-Japan's approach is unique, but the group has sold out nearly 200 events in a row in Tokyo—with no end in sight! Theirs is a Cal Ripken Jr. type of record that will stand for a long, long time.

MORE JAPANESE GROUPS

The many other promotions in Japan cater to specific audiences. The most common types of so-called niche promotions are women's wrestling, hardcore brawling wrestling (known in Japan as "garbage" wrestling, which is not considered a negative term), hard-edged "shoot" wrestling style, and the "Lucha Libre" style of matches popularized in Mexico.

There are three promotions that run only women's wrestling matches, the most popular of which is All-Japan women. There are no better-conditioned wrestlers in the world than the All-Japan women, showcased recently on both WWF and WCW cards. The All-Japan women's promotion has a strong following, and in November 1994 ran its own card at the Tokyo Dome that drew 42,500 fans. Its two biggest stars are Minami Toyota, who looks more like a beauty queen than a top pro athlete (but has more wrestling moves than anyone in the world, male or female) and Aja Kong, a brutal 220-pound monster reminiscent of a female Abdullah the Butcher.

"GARBAGE" WRESTLING

There are numerous so-called garbage federations. The most popular now is the IWA (International Wrestling Alliance). The IWA is affiliated with the NWA in the United States and EMLL (Empresa Mexicana Lucha Libre) in Mexico. Not only have they had Dan Severn defend the NWA title on major cards, but the group has also had some of the lighter-weight champions from EMLL defend their titles as well. This group features Americans Cactus Jack and Terry Funk, veteran madman Tiger Jeet Singh, great technical wrestlers such as Miguel Perez, Silver King, Super Astro, and El Texanoan, and an amazingly agile pair of 440-pound twin brothers from the Dominican Republic known as The Head Hunters (currently the IWA tag team champions).

IWA features the most barbaric matches ever conceived: broken-glass matches, barbed-wire baseball bat matches, and one in which the ring was surrounded by a bed of nails. A major IWA card is very similar to an ECW card, with brawling, breaking tables, and fire regular occurrences. Like ECW, IWA will feature a great technical match on most major cards.

On August 20, 1995, this small promotion shocked the wrestling world by drawing more than 28,000 fans to a baseball stadium for a King of the Death Match tournament that saw Cactus beat Terry Funk in the finals. Funk, who began appearing in Japan more than 25 years ago, is one of the country's most famous American athletes. By beating Funk, Cactus became an enormous favorite as

The other major "garbage" promotion is FMW

(Frontier Martial Arts). FMW lost a great deal of its popularity when its biggest star, Atsushi Onita, retired in May 1995. The group's mantle is now being carried by a young man named Hayabusa, who wrestles a style that would best be described as a cross between Sabu and 2 Cold Scorpio. The top Americans that compete in FMW are FMW Brass Knux champion The Gladiator (also known as Mike Awesome) and Horace Boulder, the nephew of Hulk Hogan. FMW is also the group that first brought Sabu his international reputation.

SHOOT-STYLE WRESTLING

Shoot-style wrestling, promoted by three major organizations, is probably closer in nature to the Ultimate Fighting Championships than to WWF or WCW. The matches are fast and brutal, with no pinfalls allowed; the only way to win is via submission or knockout. Referees enforce the rules strictly, but since the wrestlers know what is and isn't allowed, it is rare to find a disqualification and wrestlers never brawl outside the ring.

The most popular of the shoot-style groups today is the Pancrase organization. Pancrase's top star is an American, Ken Shamrock, best known in the United States for his UFC matches against the likes of Royce Gracie, Dan Severn, and Oleg Taktarov. But while he was practically unknown to American fans one year ago, Shamrock in 1994 finished behind only Stan Hansen and Steve Williams as the most popular American wrestler in the eyes of Japanese fans.

The top American wrestlers for Pancrase are ex-UFC competitors Jason DiLucia and Guy Mezger, former world kick-boxing champion Maurice Smith, and Shamrock's younger brother, Frank, who is currently the number-one contender to the Pancrase title. The current champion is Bas Rutten of the Netherlands, a man who combines brutal kicking ability with a vast knowledge of submission holds. Probably the most popular of all the Japanese stars in Pancrase is Masakatsu Funaki, who once beat boxing great Roberto Duran in a mixed match.

Because the emphasis is on speed in getting opponents in holds on the mat, speed in getting out of them, and on conditioning (because relaxing for even one moment often spells defeat), almost all of the Pancrase wrestlers would be classified as junior heavyweights in the United States. Ken Shamrock, its top star, tries to stay between 205 and 210 pounds for his matches; former champion Minoru Suzuki weighed only 175 when he won the title from Shamrock.

Another shoot group is called RINGS, headed by Akira Maeda, who, with the exception of the top All-Japan wrestlers and perhaps. The Great Muta, is the most popular of all the Japanese wrestlers. In addition to Japanese stars, Maeda features Russian, Dutch, and Bulgarian competitors, none of whom have ever wrestled in the United States. Volk Han, a Russian submission expert, is generally considered to be the top wrestler in RINGS. Besides drawing very well in Japan, RINGS-promoted cards in the Netherlands and in Russia have drawn huge crowds to see the RINGS stars from those countries face the Japanese.

The third major shoot-style group is UWFI, whose stars are currently feuding with the New Japan wrestlers. UWFI's biggest star, Nobuhiko Takada, has an international reputation based on having twice defeated Big Van Vader by submission—once when Vader held the WCW World title (in that match, however, only Takada's UWFI title was at stake). Takada once won a mixed match against former WBC heavyweight boxing champion Trevor Berbick in less than two minutes. UWFI also has a large following in both England and Israel.

LUCHA-STYLE AND WAR

"L ucha Libre" is Mexican professional wrestling (see next section), and there are several groups in Japan that promote Lucha-style competition. The most popular of the Lucha-style groups is Michinoku Pro Wrestling. Michinoku Pro is in some ways similar to Smoky Mountain Wrestling in the United States in that it runs small cards in tiny towns and villages that the major promotions would never consider.

Michinoku Pro was where current WWF star Hakushi got his start. Michinoku's biggest star presently is The Great Sasuke, the best and most acrobatic flier in Japan. Most of the foreign wrestlers, as you would expect, come from Mexico, although U.S. independent wrestlers like Jerry Lynn, Super Boy, and Piloto Suicida have had success with this group.

One final Japanese organization worth noting doesn't really fit into any of the above categories, yet tries to fit into most of them. The promotion is known as Wrestle Association R. or WAR for short.

WAR has a loose affiliation with the WWF in the United States and EMLL in Mexico.

A typical WAR card will feature a lot of the elements of the different organizations. Usually there are two women's matches, a Lucha Libre match or two, a brawling match or two, and the main events are usually six-man tag matches held inside a cage. WAR is the only promotion in Japan that has cage matches. WAR doesn't have a heavyweight champion; its major championships are several lightweight titles, plus a six-man tag team championship.

WAR's biggest star is Genichiro Tenryu, who many years ago held the NWA World six-man title with The Road Warriors. After the threesome split up and the six-man championship was no longer recognized in the United States, WAR held a tournament to revive the title. The champions right now are Koki Kitahara, Nobutaka Araya, and Arashi. WAR has its own junior heavyweight champion, Ultimo Dragon, who is one of the most accomplished wrestlers in Mexico. Dragon and his top rival, Lion Heart, who wrestled in SMW last year as Chris Jericho of the Thrillseekers tag team, have traded the NWA middleweight title back an forth in both Japan and Mexico, where the title has been based since the 1930s.

MEXICAN LUCHA LIBRE

Mexican wrestling—Lucha Libre—is a world apart from wrestling in Japan and the United States, where the emphasis is on heavy-weights and, to some degree, junior heavy-weights. Though the wrestlers are much smaller in stature, Mexico has weight classes, so anyone with ability can have a place in Mexican wrestling, regardless of size. One of the country's most popular stars today, Rey Misterio Jr., weighs only 140 pounds.

Lucha Libre (which in the United States and Japan indicates the Mexican style of wrestling, but in Mexico simply denotes professional wrestling) is characterized by smaller wrestlers, greater acrobatics, and an emphasis on submission holds. Many wrestlers traditionally wear masks, and most matches are six-man bouts in which the winning team must pin (or achieve submission over) either the captain of the opposing team or both remaining members of that team.

Because the wrestlers are in general very small, they developed the fastest-paced, most acrobatic style in the world. And Mexico has more wrestlers than any country in the world. In most cities in Mexico, it isn't uncommon to find two or three live cards per week. Some nights in Mexico City, there are as many as two dozen wrestling cards! There are more cards, more wrestling promotions, and more wrestlers in Mexico than anyone could ever hope to keep track of. All those cards means a lot of wrestlers, especially since most matches in Mexico are what are called trios matches, or six-man tags in American terms. Lucha-style cards in recent years have spread to the United States, particularly in Los Angeles, and to Japan, with organizations like Michinoku Pro.

AAA, which is the most popular promotion in Mexico right now, was formed in 1992. The wrestling style on AAA events is not traditional Lucha Libre, as most new fans mistake it to be. AAA was formed by Antonio Pena, and was built around a few veteran legends of the Lucha Libre wars such as Perro Aquayo and Cien

MIL MASCARAS VS. MR. SAITO Caras. But at the heart of the promotion are the Caras. But at the heart of the promotion are the dozens of wrestlers under 25 years old, best exemplified by Rey Misterio Jr. and Psicosis. These young men all grew up trained in Lucha style, but by traveling to the United States and Japan, and studying videotapes on the long bus rides to the various cities in which they wrestle, they have put together a style that combines the best of America, Mexico, and Japan. When these young men gain a little more experience, there is little doubt that they will be the best wrestlers in the world.

In recent years, some of the top names brought to Mexico by AAA have been Black Cat and Koji Kanemoto of New Japan, and "Love Machine" Art Barr from the United States, who was on the verge of superstardom when he died

AAA has champions in every weight division. Right now, the title matches that seem to mean the most are in the welterweight division, with Misterio Jr. holding the crown. However, the two most popular wrestlers in Mexico are Aguayo and Konnan. Aguayo, Mexico's equivalent to Bruno Sammartino, is a national hero and arguably the most popular wrestler in the world. Konnan, a transplanted Cuban-American, who grew up in the U.S. watching both California and Florida wrestling, became an instant superstar in Mexico because of his size (237 pounds).

AAA's heavyweight champion, known as the WWA heavyweight champion, is a young body-builder named Cibernetico, who upset Aguayo for the title on October 27, 1995, in Tehuacan.

No story on pro wrestling in Mexico would be complete without mentioning El Santo, probably the most beloved wrestler who ever lived. Santo, who wrestled from the late-'30s all the way through the '70s, is Mexico's greatest native movie star, having starred in 44 films. In American terms, Santo is like James Bond and Arnold Schwarzenegger wrapped up in one. His movie fame as an action hero, before such a term even existed in the United States, came in fight scenes and dramas where he would never be seen without his trademark silver mask.

In the mid-1960s, another Mexican legend developed as a former bodybuilder known as Mil Mascaras became both a wrestling champion and movie star. Mascaras was the only superstar in Mexico ever to make it just as big in the United States and Japan. He is still active today.

From the '50s through the mid-'70s, many of the great Mexican stars appeared in the United States, primarily in Texas and California. Such competitors as Rito Romero, Raul Mata, Jose Lothario, the legendary tag team of Goliath and Black Gordman, Ray Mendoza, Blackie Guzman, Pepper Gomez, Dos Caras, El Canek, plus Gori Guerrero and his sons Chavo, Mando, and Hector held numerous major championships.

GORI GUERRERO VS. ROY HEFFERNAN

190 Wrestling Almanac 1996

But from the mid-'70s until 1993, it seemed the border separating the United States and Mexico was like the Berlin Wall that could never be crossed. That changed on August 28, 1993, when AAA ran a card at the Los Angeles Sports Arena. Not only did the building sell out with 16,742 fans, but 8,000 fans more were turned away! This was the same Sports Arena that the WWF had failed to sell out for two different WrestleManias. Suddenly, every wrestling promoter in the world wanted to know more about Konnan El Barbaro, Perro Aguayo, Cien Caras, and El Hijo del Santo (son of El Santo). Since that time, AAA has run numerous successful events in Los Angeles, San Jose, Chicago, and New York, and even ran a pay-perview event in 1994. Most recently, many AAA stars have ventured to Japan, ECW (Konnan, Rey Misterio Jr., Psicosis, and La Parka), and WCW (Eddy Guerrero). Because it has a weekly Spanishlanguage television show that has immense popularity in Southern California on local stations, and nationally on the Spanish-language network Galavision, AAA has the biggest following in the U.S. of all the international promotions.

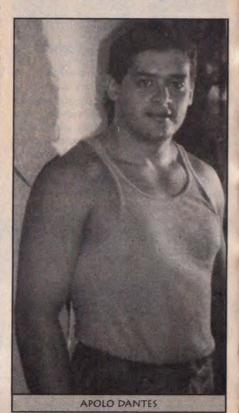

Traditional Lucha Libre still exists in Mexico in EMLL. Formed in 1933, EMLL is the oldest major wrestling group in the world. EMLL's popularity made a comeback in late-1995 after a talent-raid of AAA talent like El Hijo del Santo, plus an affiliation with IWA that brought in Miguel Perez. The organization is planning to promote major cards in the U.S. in the near future.

Because EMLL is based on tradition, many of the group's biggest stars are sons of legends of years past. Next to Santo, the most popular wrestler in EMLL today is Rayo de Jalisco Jr, whose father Rayo de Jalisco Sr., was a Mexican version of a '60s Dusty Rhodes.

Technical brilliance can be found at times in the EMIL rings, particularly from the likes of Silver King, the son of the '60s legend Dr. Wagner; Negro Casas, son of '60s legend Pepe Casas; and Ultimo Dragon, a Japanese wrestler with an array of flying moves that can match anyone in the world.

EMLL, formed by Salvador Lutteroth, was a strong member of the NWA from its inception. Because Mexico was the hotbed of lighter-weight wrestling, it became home to the NWA's light heavyweight, middleweight, and welterweight titles. While the NWA name has lost most of its worldwide luster, those lighter-weight titles are still defended in Mexico. Currently, Dandy holds the light heavyweight title, Ultimo Dragon the middleweight crown, and the welterweight title is vacant with a tournament expected to be held shortly. The group also has titles in several weight divisions known as the CMLL (Consejo Mundial Lucha Libre) championships. The heavyweight king is Apolo Dantes, a second-generation wrestler whose father held the NWA light heavyweight title on several occasions.

A EUROPEAN PERSPECTIVE

Beyond Japan and Mexico, the other part of the world currently promoting the most wrestling is Europe. What's interesting about Europe is that the wrestling that is most popular there is the WWF. One of the most famous WWF cards ever was the 1992 SummerSlam, held at Wembley Stadium in London, England, which drew more than 80,000 fans. WWF events routinely sell out in England, Germany, and particularly Austria.

WCW, New Japan, and UWFI also have great followings on television in Europe. WCW has toured Europe in the past, and probably will do so again in the future, although not as regularly as WWF. While New Japan has a popular television show in both English and German, the organization hasn't attempted to promote cards there.

There are several smaller wrestling organizations in England, Germany, and Austria as well. The most famous of these is the CWA (Catch Wrestling Association). Headed by former AWA World champion Otto Wanz, CWA is unique in that it runs its cards based on tournaments. Every year in the major cities of Austria and Germany, there will be a card every night for approximately 40 days. Strict win-loss records are kept, and at the end of the tour, a championship is awarded. Then, after a few weeks off, the wrestlers will head to the next city and wrestle for approximately 40 days.

Wanz uses mainly wrestlers from England and Germany on his cards, but some North Americans are regulars as well. The best-known U.S. stars would be former Dallas-area wrestlers John Hawk and Rod Price, former WCW wrestlers P.N. News (who wrestles as Cannonball Grizzly) and Ice Train, and former WWF star Man Mountain Rock. The CWA heavyweight champion is French wrestler Rambo, who has held the title on two occasions, winning it from Big Van Vader and Road Warrior Hawk. The middleweight champion is a name more familiar to American fans, Paul Roma.
